Jewell, 2003-11-30 Challenging widely held beliefs this provocative book offers nothing less than a blueprint for enhancing the social and economic status of African American families Despite the implementation of liberal social policies in the 1960s and 70s successive U S administrations continue to dash the hopes and expectations of African Americans who remain subject to racism and discrimination Arguing that social policies and their absence have affected the stability of the African American family Jewell refutes the myth of significant progress for African American families emanating from the civil rights era exposing the myriad reasons why greater advancement toward equality has not occurred in major societal institutions Attention is focused on the extent to which African American families have been adversely affected by a process of assimilation that was socio psychological rather than economic This new edition builds upon the first edition and is revised and expanded to reflect new and persistent institutional policies and practices of race gender and class inequality facing African American families The revised edition explores such issues as racial profiling capital punishment police brutality predatory lending No Child Left Behind welfare reform affirmative action and racial disparities in healthcare academic achievement and home ownership Jewell proposes a variety of strategies and policies that are needed to ensure greater social and economic equality and justice for African American families African Americans by the Numbers Glenn L. Hattery, Earl Smith, 2017-12-08 From Trayvon Martin to Freddie Gray the stories of police violence against Black people are too often in the news In Policing Black Bodies Angela J. Hattery and Earl Smith make a compelling case that the policing of Black bodies goes far beyond these individual stories of brutality They connect the regulation of African American people in many settings including the public education system and the criminal justice system into a powerful narrative about the myriad ways Black bodies are policed Policing Black Bodies goes beyond chronicling isolated incidents of injustice to look at the broader systems of inequality in our society how they re structured how they harm Black people and how we can work for positive change The book discusses the school to prison pipeline mass incarceration and the prison boom the unique ways Black women and trans people are treated wrongful convictions and the challenges of exoneration and more Each chapter of the book opens with a true story explains the history and current state of the issue and looks toward how we can work for change The book calls attention to the ways class race and gender contribute to injustice as well as the perils of colorblind racism that by pretending not to see race we actually strengthen rather than dismantle racist social structures Policing Black Bodies is a powerful call to acknowledge injustice and work for change African-American Families Wade W. Ethnic Women Vasiliki Demos, 1994. This book introduces the study of ethnic women and contributes to our understanding of the relationships among gender, race, ethnicity, and social class. The social scientific study of gender has grown exponentially for more than two decades. Until recently, however, little attention has been paid to the diversity among women. The social scientific literature on ethnicity has experienced a revival in the same decades, yet women have frequently been overlooked or misrepresented in that literature. When ethnic women do appear, they are typically depicted as selfless wives and mothers or passive victims. These twenty original essays challenge myths and stereotypes. The authors, social scientists, social service professionals, and other scholars, explore a broad range of racial, ethnic, and social class circumstances. Communities represented include the Hmong in Wisconsin, Cuban Jews in Florida, and Samoans in Hawaii. Patterns of immigration and social mobility, communal institutions, and maintenance of ethnic traditions are among the topics which reflect the multiple status reality of ethnic women.
