Securing Water and Wastewater Systems Robert M. Clark, Simon Hakim, 2013-10-04 Urban water and wastewater systems have an inherent vulnerability to both manmade and natural threats and disasters including droughts earthquakes and terrorist attacks It is well established that natural disasters including major storms such as hurricanes and flooding can effect water supply security and integrity Earthquakes and terrorist attacks have many characteristics in common because they are almost impossible to predict and can cause major devastation and confusion Terrorism is also a major threat to water security and recent attention has turned to the potential that these attacks have for disrupting urban water supplies There is a need to introduce the related concept of Integrated Water Resources Management which emphasizes linkages between land use change and hydrological systems between ecosystems and human health and between political and scientific aspects of water management An expanded water security agenda should include a conceptual focus on vulnerability risk and resilience an emphasis on threats shocks and tipping points and a related emphasis on adaptive management given limited predictability Internationally concerns about water have often taken a different focus and there is also a growing awareness including in the US that water security should include issues related to quantity climate change and biodiversity impacts in addition to terrorism This presents contributions from a group of internationally recognized experts that attempt to address the four areas listed above and includes suggestions as to how to deal with related problems It also addresses the new and potentially growing issue of cyber attacks against water and waste water infrastructure including descriptions of actual attacks making it of interest to scholars and policy makers concerned with protecting the water supply

Picture Theory Nicole Brossard, 2006 A novel first published in French in 1982 Picture Theory demonstrates Nicole Brossard's fiction technique and her preoccupation with the difficulty of writing and reading woman. The title taken from Wittgenstein implies her reference to the hologram as a new pictorial model for woman like the hologram which is intended to be read from an infinite number of changing conditions. Brossard's text abstracts the image of the feminine so that it can be read from all angles. Centred on four women this novel of lesbian love moves from Curaçao to Montreal from New York to Paris. Essentially Picture Theory poses the question of what is a novel.

Building a Market Richard Harris, 2020-03-04. A unique study of how the American Dream came to be and came to be constantly updated and renovated. A pleasure to read. American Historical Review. Each year North Americans spend as much money fixing up their homes as they do buying new ones. This obsession with improving our dwellings has given rise to a multibillion dollar industry that includes countless books, magazines, cable shows and home improvement stores. Building a Market charts the rise of the home improvement industry in the United States and Canada from the end of World War I into the late 1950s. Drawing on the insights of business, social and urban historians and making use of a wide range of documentary sources Richard Harris shows how the middle class preference for home ownership first emerged in the 1920s and how manufacturers retailers and the federal government combined to establish the massive home improvement market and a pervasive culture of Do It Yourself Deeply insightful Building a Market is the carefully crafted history of the emergence and evolution of a home improvement revolution that changed not just American culture but the American landscape as well An important topic that deserves to be widely read by scholars of business history urban history and social history Journal of American History
