The Rings of Saturn W.G. Sebald, 2013-11-30 Sebald is the Joyce of the 21st Century The Times What begins as the record of W G Sebald s own journey on foot through coastal East Anglia from Lowestoft to Bungay becomes the conductor of evocations of people and cultures past and present From Chateaubriand Thomas Browne Swinburne and Conrad to fishing fleets skulls and silkworms the result is an intricately patterned and haunting book on the transience of all things human A novel of ideas with a difference it is nothing but ideas Formally dexterous fearlessly written why shouldn t an essay be a novel and unremittingly arcane by the end I was in tears Teju Cole Guardian Understanding W.G. seen in more general terms What interrelation can be observed between re definition of object domain and re definition of method What potential interfaces with other methods and disciplines does the proposed innovation offer Finally what are the repercussions of the proposed innovation in terms of Narratology s self definition The innovative volume facilitates the inter methodological debate between Narratology and other disciplines enabling the conceptualization of a Narratology beyond traditional Literary Criticism

Sebald, and Iain Sinclair David Anderson, 2020 Studies the work of British film maker and writer Patrick Keiller German writer W G Sebald and Welsh writer and film maker Iain Sinclair to illustrate how they represent a highly significant moment in English literature and film s engagement with landscape and environment Art, History, and Postwar Fiction Kevin Brazil, 2018 Art History and Postwar Fiction explores the ways in which twenty century novelists responded to visual art and how writing about art was often a means of commenting on historical developments of the period Hidden Legacies of Baroque Thought in Contemporary Literature Jelena Todorović, 2018-01-23 This book presents from the point of view of the early modern historian the legacy of Baroque thought in modern and contemporary literature a highly under researched subject that spans two disciplines and several centuries Its purpose is not to discover the direct links and references of one culture in the other but rather to present the patterns of thought that our time owes to the age of Baroque namely both temporal and spatial plurality The books explored here Invisible Cities by Italo Calvino Rings of Saturn by W G Sebald and The Investigator by Dragan Veliki are not novels that are consciously or purposefully Baroque in their structure or use the age of the Baroque as the setting of their narratives However the Baroque is still present in them all primarily as the aesthetic principle as that invisible heritage that shapes the worldviews of their characters They are Baroque in the sense of space they inhabit and in the way reality and imagination are interwoven The Afterlife of Holocaust Memory in Contemporary Literature and Culture R. Crownshaw, 2016-04-30 This bold intervention into the debate over the memory and post memory of the Holocaust both scrutinizes recent academic theories of post Holocaust trauma and provides a new reading of literary and architectural memory texts related to the Holocaust Writing the Dark Side of Travel Jonathan Skinner, 2012-03-01 The travel experience filled with personal trauma the pilgrimage through a war torn place the journey with those suffering these represent the darker sides of travel What is their allure and how are they represented This volume takes an ethnographic and interdisciplinary approach to explore the writings and texts of dark journeys and travels In traveling over the dead amongst the dying and alongside the suffering the authors give us a tour of humanity s violence and misery And yet from this dark side there comes great beauty and poignancy in the characterization of plight creativity in the comic graphic and graffiti sketches and comments on life and the sense of profound and spiritual journeys being undertaken recorded and memorialized Sad Planets Dominic Pettman, Eugene Thacker, 2024-03-28 Everything is sad wrote the Ancient poets But is this sadness merely a human experience projected onto the world or is there a gloom attributable to the world itself Could the universe be forever weeping the tears of things In this series of meditations Dominic Pettman and Eugene Thacker explore some of the key negative affects both eternal and emergent associated with climate change environmental destruction and cosmic solitude In so doing they unearth something so obvious that it has gone largely unnoticed the question of how we should feel about climate change Between the information gathered by planetary sensors and the simple act of breathing the air new unsettling moods are produced for which we currently lack an adequate language Should we feel grief over the loss of our planet Or is the strange feeling of witnessing mass extinction an indicator that the planet was never ours to begin with Sad Planets explores this relationship between our all too human melancholia and a more impersonal sorrow nestled in the heart of the cosmic elements Spanning a wide range of topics from the history of cosmology to the existential threat of climate change this book is a reckoning with the limits of human existence and comprehension As Pettman and Thacker observe never before have we known so much about the planet and the cosmos and yet never before have we felt so estranged from that same planet to say nothing of the stars beyond

Lives of the Novelists John Sutherland, 2011-10-27 Arranged in chronological order the novelist s lives are opinionated informative frequently funny and often shocking Professor Sutherland s authors come from all over the world their writings illustrate every kind of fiction from gothic penny dreadfuls and pornography to fantasy romance and high literature The book shows the changing forms of the genre and how the aspirations of authors to divert and sometimes to educate their readers has in some respects radically changed over the centuries and in others such as their interest in sex and relationships remained remarkably constant

Travel Narrative and the Ends of Modernity Stacy Burton, 2014 Combining theoretical arguments with close reading this text traces how twentieth century writers have reinvented travel narrative for new purposes

Contemporary Literary Landscapes Daniel Weston, 2017-05-15 Writing landscapes inevitably occurs in dialogue with a long textual and pictorial tradition but first hand experience also provides key stimuli to many writers accounts This monograph employs a comparative lens to offer an intervention in debates between literary scholars who focus on genre and those cultural geographers who are concerned that self-perpetuating literary tropes marginalize practical engagements. Suggesting that representation and experience are not competing paradigms for landscape, Daniel Weston argues that in the hands of contemporary writers they are complementary forces building composite articulations of place. In five case studies, Weston matches a writer to a mode of apprehending place: W. G. Sebald with picturing, Ciaran Carson with mapping, Iain Sinclair with walking, Robert Macfarlane with engaging, Kathleen Jamie with noticing. Drawing out a range of sites at which representation and experience interact, Weston's argument is twofold: first, interaction between traditions of landscape writing and direct experience of landscapes are mutually influential; and second, writers increasingly deploy style, form, and descriptive aesthetics to recover the experience of place in the poetics of the text itself. As Weston shows, emergent landscape writing shuttles across generic boundaries, reflecting the fact that the landscapes traversed are built out of a combination of real and imaginary sources. Remaking Literary History Helen Groth, Paul

Sheehan, 2009-10-02 History is always written wrong and so always needs to be rewritten. George Santayana's Enquiries into the Relationship between Literature and History continue to stir up intense critical and scholarly debate. Alongside the new hybrid categories that have emerged out of this ferment, life writing, ficto-criticism, history from below, and so on, there has been a welter of new literary histories, new ways of tracking the connections between the written word and the historically bound world. This has resulted in renewed discussion about distinguishing the literary from the non-literary, about dialogues taking place between different national literatures, and about ascertaining the relative status of the literary text in relation to other cultural forms. Remaking Literary History seeks to clarify the diversity of issues and positions that have arisen from these debates. Central to the book's approach is a rigorous and constructive questioning of the past across disciplinary boundaries. This is carried out through four detailed and engrossing sections that explore the relationship between memory and forgetting, what it means to be subject to history, the upsurge of interest in trauma and redemption, and the question of historical reinvention, which demonstrates how the overwriting of history continues to reinvigorate the literary imagination. As well as readers of literature and history, Remaking Literary History will be of interest to students of literary theory, legal studies, and cultural and media studies.
