A Practical Guide to the NEC3 Engineering and Construction Contract Michael

Rowlinson, 2011-04-06 Launched in 1991 the New Engineering Contract NEC has become one of the UK's leading standard forms of contract for major construction and civil engineering projects. Currently in the third edition, popularly known as NEC 3, it is a process-based construction contract embodying project management best practice and thus the basic philosophy behind the contract is different to the more adversarial principles and approach of other standard construction contracts. Written as a practical guide to the application of the procedures contained in NEC 3, this book will aid users in the transition from their use and understanding of the other standard construction contracts to the collaborative project management based approach of the ECC. Written for anyone working in the construction industry working on a project under the ECC, it will be of interest to the complete construction supply chain including employers, construction professions, contractors and sub-contractors. It will also be of interest to consultants and lawyers advising any of these parties either in the preparation of contract documentation or the resolution of problem situations which may arise. A practical guide to the application of the procedures contained in the NEC Engineering and Construction Contracts. Written specifically for people actually using and administering the NEC contracts rather than lawyers. Covers all the variations created by the Main and Secondary Options.

A Practical Guide to the NEC4 Engineering and Construction Contract Michael Rowlinson, 2018-11-28 Provides construction industry professionals with a practical and detailed guide to the NEC4 contract. The NEC contract takes a collaborative project management based approach to construction projects which is very different to the other standard forms of construction contract. This new edition of the book covers all changes in the 4th Edition of the Engineering and Construction Contract issued in June 2017 and will provide practical guidance to help users transitioning from NEC3 to NEC4. Inside A Practical Guide to the NEC4 Engineering and Construction Contract, readers will find chapters on the background of the NECECC contract, data and other documents, the spirit of mutual trust, all of the individuals involved in the process (e.g. project managers, clients, supervisors, subcontractors, etc.), communication issues, early warnings and other matters, quality management, titles dealing with timing, payment processes, cost components, compensation procedures and assessments dealing with terminations, dispute resolution, completing the contract, and more. A practical guide to the application of the procedures contained in the newly issued NEC4 Engineering and Construction Contract. Provides detailed guidance on the use of the agreement which is claimed to offer increased flexibility, improved clarity and greater ease of use. Written specifically for people actually using and administering the NEC contracts. Features 3 appendixes covering tables of clause numbers, case law and statutes, employer's, project manager's, supervisor's, contractor's and adjudicator's actions and communication forms and their uses. First launched in 1993, the NEC has become one of the UK's leading standard forms of contract for major construction and civil engineering projects, making A Practical Guide to the NEC4 Engineering and

The New Engineering Contract Arthur McInnis, 2001 The introduction of the New Engineering Contract NEC encourages a systematic approach to contracting which is multidisciplinary in nature and fully interlocked in form The NEC is intended by its supporters to be more flexible and easier to use than any current leading traditional standard forms of contract It is believed that these features reduce adversariality and disputes The NEC seeks to achieve this aim primarily through co operative management techniques and incentives built into the NEC's procedures This commentary analyses and evaluates these and related claims of innovation The New Engineering Contract A legal commentary examines the background to the NEC its design objectives structure procedures and likely judicial interpretation to determine whether it improves upon the traditional standard forms of contract Special attention is given in the commentary to the development and the significance of the principles underlying preparation of the NEC as well as the arguments in favour of and against them Throughout the detailed commentary upon the NEC clauses comparisons to the traditional forms are also made to highlight unique features and principles of general application The conclusion reached is that the NEC does make a significant contribution to the development of standard forms of contract addresses many of their short comings and offers one of the best models for their future development direction and design The commentary draws upon the body of the project management literature and legal analysis to support its conclusions The New Engineering Contract A legal commentary will be essential reading for lawyers barristers and solicitors as well as engineers and project managers Using and Understanding Engineering Service and Construction Contracts John R. Clark, 2012-12-06 1 HISTORICAL BACKGROUND In the late 1950s many members of the design professions Engineers as well as Architects became concerned about their exposure to claims for professional malpractice and particularly about the increasing number of claims that had been successfully brought against them arising out of their Construction Phase activities This led to special studies sponsored by the American Institute of Architects and the Engineers joint Counsel The outcome was twofold the development of a policy of professional liability insurance to insure Engineers and Architects against errors and omissions in the performance of their professional services and the review and development of the customary contractual arrangements defining the design professional's undertakings vis a vis his client the Owner the Project to be designed and the Contractor who was to implement that design At the outset the AIA's Owner Architect Agreement No B131 General Conditions No A201 and the Owner Contractor Agreements Nos A101 111 were the documents most frequently used by design professionals and these received particular attention In the early 1960s it became apparent that there was a need for a separate series of documents prepared to address these relationships when the Project to be designed involved primarily engineering considerations The number of Projects for which the Engineer was employed by the Owner as the prime professional to handle the Project design and construction administration was increasing Cornes and Lupton's Design Liability in the Construction Industry Sarah Lupton, 2013-12-31 Liability for the design of a building or structure is of fundamental concern to construction professionals design build contractors specialist sub contractors and lawyers Although other texts cover a wide range of aspects of liability only Cornes and Lupton's Design Liability in Construction draws together all those matters that relate specifically to design A number of factors have come together recently and are addressed in this significant update and rewrite of the 4th edition including popularity of design build procurement partnering arrangements and early contractor involvement new standard forms of construction contract and appointment and revisions to older forms technical innovations in construction collaborative working and BIM systems many well publicised cases regarding design failures significant developments in the law of tort and professional liability the development of the single European market and increased provision of services overseas Together these factors create a new range of design liability issues which the construction professional has to face Written for lawyers architects engineers and contractors the fifth edition of Design Liability in Construction will also serve as a useful text for masters level courses in engineering surveying and construction law
