Women and Minorities in Science and Engineering , 1992 Connecting Science and Engineering Education Practices in Meaningful Ways Leonard A. Annetta, James Minogue, 2016-03-02 The need for a scientifically literate citizenry one that is able to think critically and engage productively in the engineering design process has never been greater By raising engineering design to the same level as scientific inquiry the Next Generation Science Standards NGSS have signaled their commitment to the integration of engineering design into the fabric of science education This call has raised many critical questions How well do these new standards represent what actually engineers do Where do the deep connections among science and engineering practices lie To what extent can or even should science and engineering practices co exist in formal and informal educational spaces Which of the core science concepts are best to leverage in the pursuit of coherent and compelling integration of engineering practices What science important content may be pushed aside This book tackles many of these tough questions head on All of the contributing authors consider the same core question Given the rapidly changing landscape of science education including the elevated status of engineering design what are the best approaches to the effective integration of the science and engineering practices They answered with rich descriptions of pioneering approaches critical insights and useful practical examples of how embodying a culture of interdisciplinarity and innovation can fuel the development of a scientifically literate citizenry This collection of work builds traversable bridges across diverse research communities and begins to break down long standing disciplinary silos that have historically often hamstrung well meaning efforts to bring research and practice from science and engineering together in meaningful and lasting ways Centering Humanism in STEM Education Bryan Dewsbury, Susannah McGowan, Sheila S. Jaswal , Desiree Forsythe, 2024-09-24 Research demonstrates that STEM disciplines perpetuate a history of exclusion particularly for students with marginalized identities This poses problems particularly when science permeates every aspect of contemporary American life Institutions repeated failures to disrupt systemic oppression in STEM has led to a mostly white cisgender and male scientific workforce replete with implicit and or explicit biases Education holds one pathway to disrupt systemic linkages of STEM oppression from society to the classroom Maintaining views on science as inherently objective isolates it from the world in which it is performed STEM education must move beyond the transactional approaches to transformative environments manifesting respect for students social and educational capital We must create a STEM environment in which students with marginalized identities feel respected listened to and valued We must assist students in understanding how their positionality privilege and power both historically and currently impacts their meaning making and understanding of STEM
