2014 Regional Convention Notebook For Kids:

Good Kids Isabel Jijon, 2025-07-29 One in ten children worldwide is involved in some form of child labor While almost half are in occupations that put their safety at risk the other half have gray jobs like industrial farming or selling candy on the street Children in these positions often defend the value of their work and some even join social movements to demand the right to work with dignity In Good Kids Isabel Jijon reveals how global campaigns against child labor are often met with resistance from the very children they are meant to protect Conducting interviews in Bolivia and Ecuador with children who defend their labor Jijon explores what they mean by value rights and dignity in this context She finds that working children seek a sense of self worth as well as worthiness in their closest relationships they use work to prove that they are good sons daughters good friends or simply good kids Drawing also on interviews with reformers invested in ending child labor Jijon produces a nuanced picture of the ways that global campaigns can unintentionally undermine these relationships and make working children feel stigmatized rather than protected This fascinating and challenging study of moral meaning making upends simple understandings of harm and worthiness in a vast but poorly understood labor market

Handbook of Children's Rights Martin D. Ruck, Michele Peterson-Badali, Michael Freeman, 2016-12-08 While the notion of young people as individuals worthy or capable of having rights is of relatively recent origin over the past several decades there has been a substantial increase in both social and political commitment to children's rights as well as a tendency to grant young people some of the rights that were typically accorded only to adults In addition there has been a noticeable shift in orientation from a focus on children's protection and provision to an emphasis on children's participation and self determination With contributions from a wide range of international scholars the Handbook of Children's Rights brings together research theory and practice from diverse perspectives on children's rights This volume constitutes a comprehensive treatment of critical perspectives concerning children's rights in their various forms Its contributions address some of the major scholarly tensions and policy debates comprising the current discourse on children's rights including the best interests of the child evolving capacities of the child states rights versus children's rights rights of children versus parental or family rights children as citizens children's rights versus children's responsibilities and balancing protection and participation In addition to its multidisciplinary focus the handbook includes perspectives from social science domains in which children's rights scholarship has evolved largely independently due to distinct and seemingly competing assumptions and disciplinary approaches e g childhood studies developmental psychology sociology of childhood anthropology and political science The handbook also brings together diverse methodological approaches to the study of children's rights including both quantitative and qualitative perspectives and policy analysis This comprehensive cosmopolitan and timely volume serves as an important reference for both scholarly and policy driven interest in the voices and perspectives of children and youth

Children's Rights Law in the Global Human Rights Landscape Eva Brems, Ellen Desmet, Wouter

Vandenhoe,2017-04-21 Children's rights law is often studied and perceived in isolation from the broader field of human rights law This volume explores the inter relationship between children's rights law and more general human rights law in order to see whether elements from each could successfully inform the other Children's rights law has a number of distinctive characteristics such as the emphasis on the best interests of the child the use of general principles and the inclusion of third parties e g parents and other care takers in treaty provisions The first part of this book questions whether these features could be a source of inspiration for general human rights law In part two the reverse question is asked could children's rights law draw inspiration from developments in other branches of human rights law that focus on other specific categories of rights holders such as women persons with disabilities indigenous peoples or older persons Finally the interaction between children's rights law and human rights law and the potential for their isolation inspiration or integration may be coloured or determined by the thematic issue under consideration Therefore the third part of the book studies the interplay between children's rights law and human rights law in the context of specific topics intra family relations LGBTQI marginalization migration media the environment and transnational human rights obligations

Reaching and Investing in Children at the Margins National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Health and Medicine Division, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Board on Global Health, Forum on Investing in Young Children Globally, 2016-07-17 The United Nations Sustainable Development Goals for 2015-2030 strive for a world that is just, equitable and inclusive in which everyone receives care, education and opportunities to thrive. Yet many children are living on the margins of society, face multiple disadvantages and are excluded from full participation in all that life has to offer. To examine the science, economics and politics of investing in the health, education, nutrition and social protection of children at the margins, the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine held a workshop in Prague, Czech Republic in November 2015. Held in partnership with the Open Society Foundations and the International Step by Step Association, the workshop convened a diverse group of stakeholders from around the world for 2 days of discussion. This report summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop.

Women and Children as Victims and Offenders: Background, Prevention, Reintegration Helmut Kury, Sławomir Redo, Evelyn Shea, 2016-06-01 This work compiles experiences and lessons learned in meeting the unique needs of women and children regarding crime prevention and criminal justice, in particular the treatment and social reintegration of offenders, and serves as a cross-disciplinary work for academic and policy-making analyses and follow-up in developing and developed countries. Furthermore, it argues for a more humane and effective approach to countering delinquency and crime among future generations. In a world where development positively depends on the rule of law and the related investment security, two global trends may chart the course of development: urbanization and education. Urbanization will globalize the concepts of justice and fairness; education will be dominated by the urban mindset and digital service economy, just as a culture of lawfulness will. This work looks at crime prevention education as an investment in the sustainable quality of life of succeeding generations and at those who pursue such crime prevention as the providers of much-needed skills in the educational portfolio. Adopting a reformist approach, this work collects articles with findings and recommendations that may be relevant to domestic and international policymaking, including the United Nations Studies and their educational value for the welfare of coming generations. The books address the relevant United Nations ideas by combining them with academic approaches. Guided by the Editors' respective fields of expertise and in full recognition of academic freedom and organized scepticism, it includes contributions by lawyers, criminologists, sociologists and other eminent experts seeking to bridge the gap between academic and policy perspectives as appropriate against the international background, including the United Nations developments. The first volume opens with a foreword by Marta Santos Pais, the United Nations Special Representative of the Secretary General on Violence against Children, and a general introduction by the editors. Part I provides an overview of United Nations principles for crime prevention and the treatment of women and children. Part II concentrates on education and the social learning of children and adolescents. The importance of quality education is stressed, as is its impact on the behaviour of children of all ages It also includes a discussion of the factors that still hinder access to good schooling in many parts of the world Part III presents international research findings on children juveniles and women both as victims and offenders Statistics show overwhelmingly that these groups are more often victims than offenders [The Tourism We Do Not Talk About. Children, Human Rights and Temporary Labour Migration Rasika Jayasuriya, 2021-06-22. This book focuses on the neglected yet critical issue of how the global migration of millions of parents as low-waged migrant workers impacts the rights of their children under international human rights law. The work provides a systematic analysis and critique of how the restrictive features of policies governing temporary labour migration interfere with provisions of the Convention on the Rights of the Child that protect the child-parent relationship and parental role in children's lives. Combining social and legal research, it identifies both potential harms to children's well-being caused by prolonged child-parent separation and State duties to protect this relationship, which is deliberately disrupted by temporary labour migration policies. The book boldly argues that States benefitting from the labour of migrant workers share responsibility under international human rights law to mitigate harms to the children of these workers, including by supporting effective measures to maintain transnational child-parent relationships. It identifies measures to incorporate children's best interests into temporary labour migration policies, offering ways to reduce interferences with children's family rights. This book fills a gap that emerges at the intersection of child rights studies, migration research, and existing literature on the purported nexus between labour migration and international development. It will be a valuable resource for academics, researchers, and policymakers working in these areas.
