Towards the rational use of high salinity tolerant plants Helmut Lieth, A.A. Al Masoom, 2012-12-06 The Symposium on high salinity tolerant plants held at the University of Al Ain in December 1990 dealt primarily with plants tolerating salinity levels exceeding that of ocean water and which at the same time are promising for utilization in agriculture or forestry These plants could be very useful for a country like the UAE where fresh water resources are very scarce and the groundwater available at some places is already very salty More than 60 million woody trees shrubs have been planted so far and more are planned for the inland plains underlain with brackish groundwater These species were no solution for the widely barren shoreline of the UAE Here mangrove species were of potential use and one species Avicennia Marina occurs widely and has been successfully planted for about a decade Converting the tree plantations into economically useful cropping systems is still a problem requiring much research and development The book deals in several sections with conventional irrigation systems using marginal water The species used in these systems are mostly hybrids of conventional crops The irrigation systems however have similar problems as may be expected for irrigation with seawater Papers show the participants experiments in this area The volume serves as a link between scientists working for the improvement of classical irrigation systems and those interested in the application of a new dimension of salinity levels for irrigation water currently appear to be in the limelight of public interest and research funding policies. They are in danger of drifting apart from each other. They apply very coarse and very fine scaling respectively but coherence is lost when the various intermediate levels of different scales are neglected. Regarding SALINITY we are clearly dealing with a global problem which due to progressing salinization of arable land is of vital interest for society. Explanations and basic understanding as well as solutions and remedies may finally lie at the molecular level. It is a general approach in science to look for understanding of any system under study at the next finer or lower level of scaling. This in itself shows that we need a whole ladder of levels with increasingly finer steps from the global impact to the molecular bases of SALINITY relations. It is in this vein that the 22 chapters of this book aim at providing an integrated view of SALINITY.

List of Publications, 1980 My Life's Journey: Reflections Of An Academic Wai-fah Chen, 2007-09-21 Dr Wai Fah Chen a Chinese born American academic and widely recognized structural engineering specialist in the field of mechanics materials and computing has certainly led a fascinating life. A well respected leader in the field of plasticity structural stability and structural steel design over the past half century he has made major contributions to introduce the mathematical theory of plasticity to civil engineering practice especially in the application of limit analysis methods to the geotechnical engineering field. Having headed the engineering departments at the University of Hawaii and Purdue University Chen is a widely cited author and the recipient of several national engineering awards including the 1990 Shortridge Hardesty Award from the American Society of Civil Engineers and the 2003 Lifetime Achievement Award from the American Institute of Steel Construction. This book traces the life journey and reflections of Dr Chen. It presents a remarkable opportunity to understand his personal history and cultural passions his struggle to achieve the American dream his life as an eyewitness to the rise of China and his career path to establish a solid engineering reputation. Presenting his scientific achievements spanning the last 40 years of his career readers will thus be privy to his personal thoughts experiences and perspectives on these events.

Guidelines for brackish water use for agricultural production in the Near East and North Africa region Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Arab Water Council, 2023-01-26 Water scarcity is one of the major challenges in the 19 countries of the Near East and North Africa NENA region. The lack of water is affecting important irrigated areas limiting the increase of food production needed to address the growing demand due to population growth. In most countries of the NENA region the need to use non conventional water resources including brackish water is well recognized. Brackish water is loosely defined as water that is more saline than freshwater but less saline than seawater. It covers a large range of salinity levels from 500 to 30 000 mg l of total dissolved solids TDS. Despite the presence of large amounts of brackish water and its potential for use in growing a number of crops it is only used in limited amounts for irrigation. The successful use of brackish water for irrigation requires a basic understanding of scientific principles affecting the interactions among the climate the applied water the soil the crop and the environment. Equally important is the application of suitable technology and management practices that will facilitate the optional use of this poor quality water The successful use of brackish water requires a higher level of management and likely the adoption of new irrigation management practices Because climate water quality soil type and crop tolerance to salinity vary from location to location guidelines with some degree of site specific flexibility must be developed Earthquake Engineering Research Center Library Printed Catalog University of California, Berkeley.
