Daily Common Core ELA Practice

Friday

Since salt has been so useful throughout history, it has actually been the cause of disagreements between humans. During the 1600s and 1700s, salt was brought to the colonies from England. When the colonists went to war with England, salt stopped being sent to the colonies. This caused many colonists to become upset. They had to find a new way to get salt. For a few hundred years, India was ruled by England. Laws were made telling Indians that they could only buy their salt from England. British boats shipped salt to India for Indians to buy at high prices. This angered the citizens so much that they decided to fight against these salt laws.

Common Core Standard RI.3 Cause & Effect
