World Yearbook of Education 2017 Julie Allan, Alfredo J. Artiles, 2016-12-01 This latest volume in the World Yearbook of Education series examines the relationship between assessment systems and efforts to advance equity in education at a time of growing inequalities. It focuses on the political motives behind the expansion of an assessment industry, the associated expansion of an SEN industry and a growth in consequential accountability systems. Split into three key sections, the first part is concerned with the assessment industry and considers the purpose and function of assessment in policy and politics and the political context in which particular assessment practices have emerged. Part II of the book on assessing deviance explores those assessment and identification practices that seek to classify different categories of learners including children with Limited English Proficiency with special needs and disabilities and with behavioural problems. The final part of the book considers the consequences of assessment and the possibility of fairer and more equitable alternatives, examining the production of inequalities within assessment in relation to race, class, gender and disability. Discussing in detail the complex historical intersections of assessment and educational equity with particular attention to the implications for marginalised populations of students and their families, this volume seeks to provide reframings and reconceptualisations of assessment and identification by offering new insights into economic and cultural trends influencing them. Co-edited by two internationally renowned scholars, Julie Allan and Alfredo J. Artiles, World Yearbook of Education 2017 will be a valuable resource for researchers, graduates and policy makers who are interested in the economic trends of global education assessment.

Making Education Inclusive Sharon Moonsamy, Elizabeth Walton, 2015-09-18 Exclusionary pressures and practices are pervasive in education despite the clamour for more inclusive education. Even as classrooms worldwide become more diverse, education is unlikely to become inclusive without deliberate efforts to dismantle exclusion and enable inclusion. This book is a compilation of contributions to the conversation about what these efforts might entail. The conversation has its origins in the Making Education Inclusive Conference held in 2013 which brought together academics and practitioners from Southern Africa and other countries. Given the expectation that teachers should play a key role in promoting inclusion, it is not surprising to find significant interest in teacher education from many of the contributing authors. Their concerns range from explicit teacher development for pedagogical responsiveness to learner diversity to overcoming the epistemological marginalisation that learners experience where teachers are not fully confident of their subject content and how to teach it. Access to education is clearly not enough and other contributors to this book concern themselves with ways in which structures and systems could be reconstituted to enable meaningful inclusion. This might mean looking at how teachers might use tiered systems of behaviour support and various metacognitive strategies, how physical access can be promoted on a university campus and understanding how parents think about disability. Each chapter represents a different perspective on what it might mean to resist educational exclusion in its many forms and each offers possible ways to make education more inclusive Assessing Academic Literacy in a Multilingual Society Albert Weideman, John Read, Theo du Plessis, 2020-11-02 South African universities face major challenges in meeting the needs of their students in the area of academic language and literacy. The dominant medium of instruction in the universities is English and to a much lesser extent Afrikaans but only a minority of the national population are native speakers of these languages. Nine other languages can be media of instruction in schools which makes the transition to tertiary education difficult enough in itself for students from these schools. The focus of this book is on procedures for assessing the academic language and literacy levels and needs of students not in order to exclude students from higher education but rather to identify those who would benefit from further development of their ability in order to undertake their degree studies successfully. The volume also aims to bring the innovative solutions designed by South African educators to a wider international audience. Language Contact. Volume 2 Jeroen Darquennes, Joseph C. Salmons, Wim Vandebussche, 2025-04-21 Targeting a full range of students and scholars this volume provides a total of 50 chapters illustrating the linguistic dynamics and the dynamics of inter individual and societal language contact as well as the dynamics of multidisciplinary language contact studies. Fueled by a wealth of data from a rich variety of contact situations its geographically balanced case studies are governed by the triangulation between a focus on language structure and change a sincere drive of sociopolitical and academic agency and the confrontation with an everyday reality that can be unkind to and ignorant of those two factors. The volume clearly demonstrates the social relevance of our trade in a time burdened with ecolinguistic challenges. Approaches to Inclusive English Classrooms Kate Mastruserio Reynolds, 2015-03-02 This book provides educators with an accessible guide to best practices concerning content based instruction CBI models and their use in English learner inclusive classrooms. The author effectively bridges the gap between theory and practice with a critical analysis of practical examples and diverse strategies for the inclusion of English learners into K 12 general education courses. The book also raises controversial questions regarding who is qualified to teach English learners and who is responsible for doing so looking at the difficulties faced by both general educators and ESL teachers in Inclusive Classrooms. By providing a lens through which both ESL teachers and general educators are able to analyze compare and contrast a range of widely employed CBI methods this book allows teachers to make informed decisions in their EL program development and work with English learners in K 12 schools. Blended learning environments to foster self-directed learning Christo van der Westhuizen, Mncedisi C. Maphalala, Roxanne Bailey, 2023-03-31 This book on blended learning environments to foster self directed learning highlights the focus on research conducted in several teaching and learning contexts where blended learning had been implemented and focused on the fostering of self directed learning. Several authors have contributed to the book and each chapter provides a unique perspective on blended learning and self directed learning research. From each chapter it becomes evident that coherence on the topics mentioned is established. One of the main aspects drawn in this book and addressed by several authors in the book is the use of the Community of Inquiry.

CoI framework when implementing teaching and learning strategies in blended learning environments to foster self directed learning This notion of focusing on the CoI framework is particularly evident in both theoretical and empirical dissemination presented in this book What makes this book unique is the fact that researchers and peers in varied fields would benefit from the findings presented by each chapter albeit theoretical methodological or empirical in nature this in turn provides opportunities for future research endeavours to further the narrative of how blended learning environments can be used to foster self directed learning
