

Part #2. Image Formation by a Curved Mirror

If you cannot print Sheet B from the end of the instructions, use a blank sheet of paper to copy each of the diagrams.

An object in the shape of an arrow AB is placed in front of a concave mirror. In the diagrams from Sheet B, trace the rays to locate the image of the arrow (draw the ray from the head of the arrow). Call the image of A as A'. Remember that it takes tracing at least two rays starting from the arrowhead to locate where the image is. In the first diagram three of such incident rays have already been drawn, choose two of them.

The ray that goes through the focus will reflect ...

The ray that goes parallel to optic axis will reflect ...

The ray that strikes the mirror in the middle will reflect ...

Case 1: The arrow is placed farther than one radius or $2f$ (beyond C) from the mirror.

Describe the image following the questions below, include description into Sheet B:

Is the image A'B' upright or inverted with respect to the object AB?

Is the size of the image A'B' greater or smaller than the size of the object AB?

Is the image real or virtual?

Case 2: The arrow is placed between the focal point F and the center of curvature C or $2f$.

Locate the focal point accurately on this diagram using a ruler and add the second ray yourself.

Describe the image following the questions below, include description into Sheet B:

Is the image A'B' upright or inverted with respect to the object AB?

Is the size of the image A'B' greater or smaller than the size of the object AB?

Is this image real or virtual?

Case 3: The arrow is placed between the mirror and the focal point F.

Locate the focal point accurately on the diagram from Sheet B using a ruler.

Draw both rays coming to the mirror yourself. Choose rays wisely.

Describe the image following the questions below, include description into Sheet B:

Is the image A'B' upright or inverted with respect to the object AB?

Is the size of the image A'B' greater or smaller than the size of the object AB?
