Metamorphosis Anna-Teresa Tymieniecka, 2013-06-05 How do we endure when we and everything around us are caught up in incessant change? But the course of this change does not seem to be haphazard, and we may seek the modalities of its Logos in the transformations in which it occurs. The classic term Metamorphosis focuses upon the proportions between the transformed and the retained, the principles of sameness and otherness. Applied to life and its becoming, metamorphosis pinpoints the proportions between the vital and the aesthetic significance of life. Where could this metaphysical in-between territory come better to light than in the Fine Arts? In this collection, are investigated the various proportions between the vital significance of the constructivism of life and a specifically human contribution made by the creative imagination to the transformatory search for beauty and aesthetic values. Iris Murdoch's Wild Imagination Lucy Oulton, 2025-05-10 This book presents the first ecocritical study of novelist, philosopher, poet, and public intellectual Iris Murdoch (1919-1999). It brings her love of the natural world into the light, arguing for its critical significance when Murdoch conveys an awareness of intricately interconnected ecologies through her work, an awareness that anticipates the motivations and concerns of modern-day environmental humanities. The book is the first of its kind to assess some of Murdoch's poems seen as early articulation of the environmental imagination that finds recurrent expression in her novels, philosophical writings, and personal journals throughout her writing life. This book offers a significant entry point for a new research direction in Murdoch studies by explicating her unique perspective on the natural world.

Riverbank and Seashore in Nineteenth and Twentieth Century British Literature Gillian Mary Hanson, 2005-11-17 The waters of river and sea represent a kind of freedom, a liberty which, as Iris Murdoch writes, enables man to exist sanely without fear and to perceive what is real. As settings in fiction, the riverbank and seashore are rich in potential, offering a sense of destiny and suggesting the possibility of self truth and self knowledge In British literature the rural costal setting shadowed by cliffs tugged by the constant movement of the sea becomes the site of revelation and generates the energy that brings characters to a new level of self awareness The river s embankments bridges and tunnels often mark specific stages of revelation and movement in plot Entrapment and isolation contingency and communication are themes that seem born of such settings This book examines the ways in which 21 modern and postmodern writers from Tennyson to Ted Hughes from Jane Austen to Jane Gardam have made use of the physical environment of riverbank and seashore in their work It considers how each author employs the physical settings in the service of plot and character development and how those settings are used to connect with some of the major intellectual concerns of the late 19th and 20th centuries Appendices offer significant quotations from the texts under discussion arranged according to the location they describe the rural river the urban river river into sea the rural shore and the urban shore Novel Shakespeares Julie Sanders, 2001 Much recent contemporary fiction by women has appropriated and adapted themes and plot structures found in Shakespearean drama This is an innovative study of these texts It considers novels by authors set in locations covering the globe
