The Rhetoric Of Fiction By Wayne C Booth:

The Rhetoric of Fiction Wayne C. Booth, 1961 Rhetoric is the author's term for the means by which the writer makes known his vision to the reader and persuades him of its validity and he demonstrates convincingly that there is no essential difference between ostentatiously rhetorical novelists like Fielding and Dickens and the admired masters of impersonality Flaubert James Joyce this is a major critical work which should be required reading for everyone concerned in the academic study of prose fiction Modern Language Review

A Rhetoric of Irony Wayne C. Booth, 1974 Perhaps no other critical label has been made to cover more ground than irony and in our time irony has come to have so many meanings that by itself it means almost nothing In this work Wayne C Booth cuts through the resulting confusions by analyzing how we manage to share quite specific ironies and why we often fail when we try to do so How does a reader or listener recognize the kind of statement which requires him to reject its clear and obvious meaning And how does any reader know where to stop once he has embarked on the hazardous and exhilarating path of rejecting what the words say and reconstructing what the author means In the first and longer part of his work Booth deals with the workings of what he calls stable irony irony with a clear rhetorical intent He then turns to intended instabilities ironies that resist interpretation and finally lead to the infinite absolute negativities that have obsessed criticism since the Romantic period Professor Booth is always ironically aware that no one can fathom the unfathomable But by looking closely at unstable ironists like Samuel Becket he shows that at least some of our commonplaces about meaninglessness require revision Finally he explores with the help of Plato the wry paradoxes that threaten any uncompromising assertion that all assertion can be undermined by the spirit of irony
