systems are innovated planned and adapted deployed and expanded and reach maturity where they may either be maintained in a polished obsolesce often propped up by subsidies be displaced by competitors or be reorganized and renewed An array of examples supports the idea that modern policies are built from past experiences William Garrison and David Levinson assert that the planning and control of nonlinear unstable processes is today's central transportation problem and that this is universal and true of all modes Modes are similar in that they all have a triad structure of network vehicles and operations but this framework counters conventional wisdom Most think of each mode as having a unique history and status and each is regarded as the private playground of experts and agencies holding unique knowledge operating in isolated silos However this book argues that while modes have an appearance of uniqueness the same patterns repeat systems policies structures and behaviors are a generic design on varying modal cloth In the end the illusion of uniqueness proves to be myopic While it is true that knowledge has accumulated from past experiences the heavy hand of these experiences places boundaries on current knowledge especially on the ways professionals define problems and think about processes The Transportation Experience provides perspective for the collections of models and techniques that are the essence of transportation science and also expands the boundaries of current knowledge of the field

Lithium-Ion Cells Yury Koshtyal, Alexander Rumyantsev, 2024-12-24 A large quantity of articles and books have been published on the designated topics However most of the literary sources describe the results of scientific articles on the synthesis and study of perspective materials reveal circuit and design solutions for constructing control systems and manufacturing batteries and are educational materials At the same time a small part of the published sources includes the following descriptions of materials produced industrially and used in the LIC manufacturing process demonstrations of the industrially produced LIC energy and power parameters analysis of the characteristics of manufactured miniature lithium ion cells solid state LICs lithium metal cells and all solid state cells as well as others Considering the popularity of the discussed topics one can hope to find detailed information on the Internet Indeed modern search engines make it possible to locate a sufficiently large number of relevant documents However while conducting such research we encountered the following challenges the data are somewhat fragmented and their systematization and structuring are required search results do not always meet search queries For instance data that were relevant to the topic were found but they did not match the query as accumulated data grow the search time for new information extends the choice of search engine and location different countries affects search results the data are not indexed in search engines although the correct keywords and website were requested the information disappears due to website updates and the found data require additional processing For example many presentations show changes in the shape of the discharge curves depending on the discharge current strength In addition however Ragone plots are necessary for a correct comparison and therefore the mathematical processing of presented results is required. Thus this book was written to systematize and structure information on industrially produced materials for LIC manufacturing and industrially produced and promising LICs and lithium metal rechargeable cells for various applications.

The Killing Consensus Graham Denyer Willis, 2015-03-21. We hold many assumptions about police work that it is the responsibility of the state or that police officers are given the right to kill in the name of public safety or self defense. But in The Killing Consensus Graham Denyer Willis shows how in S o Paulo Brazil killing and the arbitration of normal killing in the name of social order are actually conducted by two groups: the police and organized crime, both operating according to parallel logics of murder. Based on three years of ethnographic fieldwork, Willis's book traces how homicide detectives categorize two types of killing: the first resulting from resistance to police arrest, which is often broadly defined; and the second, at the hands of a crime family known as the Primeiro Comando da Capital (PCC). Death at the hands of police happens regularly, while the PCC's centralized control and strict moral code among criminals has also routinized killing, ironically making the city feel safer for most residents. In a fractured urban security environment where killing mirrors patterns of inequitable urbanization and historical exclusion along class, gender, and racial lines, Denyer Willis's research finds that the city's cyclical periods of peace and violence can best be understood through an unspoken but mutually observed consensus on the right to kill. This consensus hinges on common notions and street-level practices of who can die, where, how, and by whom, revealing an empirically distinct configuration of authority that Denyer Willis calls sovereignty by consensus.
