

TRAILER-TOWING

TRAILER-TOWING... CONSIDER FORD FIRST.

Choosing the right truck for your towing demands is as easy as asking yourself three questions: How much weight will the trailer add to the truck? How long will the trailer be? How many people will be in the truck? The answers to these questions will help you choose the right truck for your needs. Ford's towing capacity is based on the weight of the truck, the weight of the trailer, and the weight of the people in the truck. Ford's towing capacity is based on the weight of the truck, the weight of the trailer, and the weight of the people in the truck.

For example, if you're towing a 10,000 lb. trailer, you'll need a truck with a towing capacity of at least 10,000 lb. If you're towing a 10,000 lb. trailer and you have four people in the truck, you'll need a truck with a towing capacity of at least 10,000 lb. If you're towing a 10,000 lb. trailer and you have four people in the truck, you'll need a truck with a towing capacity of at least 10,000 lb.

Remember the effective maximum weight that can be towed is a critical consideration when choosing a towing vehicle. It's not just the weight of the trailer that matters, but the weight of the people in the truck. Ford's towing capacity is based on the weight of the truck, the weight of the trailer, and the weight of the people in the truck.
