

Evolution Study Guide

1. What is an adaptation?

A characteristic which helps a species to be better suited to its environment.

List some examples:

Birds for flight: Keel (flight muscle), feathers, hollow bones

Arthropods: exoskeleton

Mammals: Mammary glands, Fur

TONS OF EXAMPLES

2. Define Evolution

Populations change over time

3. What is a fossil?

Remain or imprint of once-living organism

a. How do fossils form?

-Dead organism is covered by layer of sediment

- more sediment covers

- minerals in the sediment may seep into the organism and gradually replace with stone OR if the organism rots away completely after being covered it may leave an imprint

4. What is a homology?

Similarity shared between two different organisms that is inherited from a common ancestor with similar trait. Can be anatomical (tail, bones), a complex structure (antennae), a gene sequence (gene that codes for insulin is the same in cows and humans), or a behavior (mother taking care of young)

5. What is an analogy?

A similarity that is a result of convergent evolution (a trait that performs a similar function as another organism but is not a result from inheritance from a common ancestor) Meaning the environment caused two separate lineages to evolve similar traits to help organism survive, so they appear the same, but have different origins.

a. Give some example (can you think of any on your own?)

Dolphins/Whales with stream line body and fins: these two have homologies with each otherHOWEVER the streamlined body and fins of a shark or fish are an analogy compared to a whale/dolphin.

So the ability for these two groups to swim evolved separately....

6. What is a vestigial structure?

A functionless (does not serve a purpose) structure that an organism possess, but is an important structure for a closely related species
