Publishers Weekly     21st Century Homestead: Beekeeping Brant Reuber, 2015-02-21 21st Century Homestead Beekeeping contains everything you need to stay up to date on beekeeping     Shaping the Future of African American Film Monica White Ndounou, 2014-04-29 In Hollywood we hear it's all about the money. It's a ready explanation for why so few black films get made: no crossover appeal, no promise of a big payoff. But what if the money itself is color-coded? What if the economics that governs film production is so skewed that no film by or for people of color will ever look like a worthy investment unless it follows specific racial or gender patterns? This Monica Ndounou shows us is precisely the case. In a work as revealing about the culture of filmmaking as it is about the distorted economics of African American film, Ndounou clearly traces the insidious connections between history, content, and cash in black films. How does history come into it? Hollywood's reliance on past performance as a measure of potential success virtually guarantees that historically underrepresented, underfunded, and undersold African American films devalue the future prospects of black films. So the cycle continues as it has for nearly a century. Behind the scenes, the numbers are far from neutral. Analyzing the onscreen narratives and off-screen circumstances behind nearly two thousand films featuring African Americans in leading and supporting roles, including such recent productions as Bamboozled, Beloved, and Tyler Perry's Diary of a Mad Black Woman, Ndounou exposes the cultural and racial constraints that limit not just the production but also the expression and creative freedom of black films. Her wide-ranging analysis reaches into questions of literature, language, speech, and dialect, film images and narrative, acting, theater, and film business practices, production history, and financing and organizational history. By uncovering the ideology behind profit-driven industry practices that reshape narratives by or about and for people of color, this provocative work brings to light existing limitations and possibilities for reworking stories and business practices in theater, literature, and film.

Encyclopedia of American Popular Fiction Geoff Hamilton, Brian Jones, 2015-04-22 Provides information on American authors and their works who have been ignored by most literary guides     Empathy and the Novel Suzanne Keen, 2007-04-19 Does empathy felt while reading fiction actually cultivate a sense of connection leading to altruistic actions on behalf of real others? Empathy and the Novel presents a comprehensive account of the relationships among novel reading, empathy, and altruism. Drawing on psychology, narrative theory, neuroscience, literary history, philosophy, and recent scholarship in discourse processing, Keen brings together resources and challenges for the literary study of empathy and the psychological study of fiction reading. Empathy robustly enters into affective responses to fiction, yet its role in shaping the behavior of emotional readers has been debated for three centuries. Keen surveys these debates and illustrates the techniques that invite empathetic response. She argues that the perception of fictiveness increases the likelihood of readers' empathy, in part by releasing them from the guarded responses necessitated by the demands of real others. Narrative empathy is a strategy and subject of contemporary novelists from around the world: writers who tacitly endorse the potential universality of human emotions when they call upon their readers' empathy. If narrative empathy is to be taken seriously, Keen suggests then women's reading and responses to popular fiction occupy a central position in literary inquiry and cognitive literary studies should extend its range beyond canonical novels. In short, Keen's study extends the playing field for literature practitioners, causing it to resemble more closely that wide open landscape inhabited by readers.
