Irish Women Writers Speak Out Caitriona Moloney, Helen Thompson, 2003-03-01 Bringing together the diverse and marvelously articulate voices of women of Irish and Irish American descent editors Caitriona Moloney and Helen Thompson examine the complicated maps of experience that the women's public private and literary lives represent particularly as they engage in both feminism and postcolonialism Acknowledging Mary Robinson's revised view of Irish identity now global rather than local this work recognizes the importance of identity as a site of mobility The pieces reveal how complex the terms feminism and postcolonialism are they examine how the individual writers see their identities constructed and or mediated by sexuality In addition the book traces common themes of female agency violence generational conflicts migration emigration religion and politics to name a few As it represents the next wave of Irish women writers this book offers fresh insight into the work of emerging and established authors and will appeal to a new generation of readers In the Wake of the Tiger

David Clark, Rubén Jarazo Álvarez, 2010-09 The field of Irish Studies has undergone a period of great fruitfulness over the last decade Concurrent with the economic revolution and subsequent financial crash an immense interest in the island of Ireland and her cultural practices has been apparent from parts of the globe and academic debate on Irish culture and society has been intense and prosperous This volume contains a number of essays which approach a variety of issues raised within the framework of post Celtic Tiger Ireland with contributions from scholars working in Europe The book is divided into four sections on Trauma Studies on the relationship between Ireland with Europe and the rest of the world on Audiovisual Studies and on Ireland and the Celtic Tiger The essays reflect a variety of issues which are of great relevance to an understanding of the world of Irish Studies at the end of the first decade of the twenty first century Twentieth-Century Fiction by Irish

Women Heather Ingman, 2017-03-02 During much of the twentieth century Irish women's position was on the boundaries of national life Using Julia Kristeva's theories of nationhood often particularly relevant to Ireland this study demonstrates that their marginalization was to women's and indeed the nation's advantage as Irish women writers used their voice to subvert received pieties both about women and about the Irish nation Kristevan theories of the other the foreigner the semiotic the mother and the sacred are explored in authors as diverse as Elizabeth Bowen Kate O'Brien Edna O'Brien Mary Dorsey Jennifer Johnston and Eilís Ní Dhuibhne as well as authors from Northern Ireland like Deirdre Madden Polly Devlin and Mary Morrissy These writers whose voices have frequently been sidelined or misunderstood because they write against the grain of their country's cultural heritage finally receive their due in this important contribution to Irish and gender studies

Two Irelands Rebecca Pelan, 2005-06-27 The very different histories of the North and South are reflected in their literature While women in the Republic of Ireland have tended to write about social issues sexism crime unemployment and domestic violence women in Northern Ireland focused on their society's historical tension and primarily nationalist and unionist politics However Pelan maintains that feminist ideology has provided contemporary Irish women with an alternate political stance that incorporates gender and nationality ethnicity and allows them to move beyond the usual binaries of politics history and language Irish and English In an analysis enriched by a sophisticated but accessible engagement with contemporary feminist and gender theory Pelan concludes that Irish women's writing whether at the community or mainstream level North or South consistently articulates political issues of direct relevance to the lives of Irish women today As a result such work retains close links with the initial impetus of the second wave of feminism as a political movement and questions the legitimacy of long standing social religious and political conventions From within the framework provided by this second wave argues Pelan Irish women can critique certain masculine ideologies nationalist unionist imperialist and capitalist without forfeiting their own sense of gender and national or ethnic identity The book's significance lies in its placement of women's writing in the center of contemporary political discourse in Ireland and in ensuring that the writing from this period much of it long out of print continues to exist as sociological as well as literary records It will be of interest to a general and scholarly audience especially those in the fields of contemporary Irish writing feminism and literary history
