Bushnell,2012-12-06 Branch and bound search has been known for a long time and has been widely used in solving a variety of problems in computer aided design CAD and many important optimization problems In many applications the classic branch and bound search methods perform duplications of computations or rely on the search decision trees which keep track of the branch and bound search processes In CAD and many other technical fields the computational cost of constructing branch and bound search decision trees in solving large scale problems is prohibitive and duplications of computations are intolerable Efficient branch and bound methods are needed to deal with today's computational challenges Efficient branch and bound methods must not duplicate computations Efficient Branch and Bound Search with Application to Computer Aided Design describes an efficient branch and bound method for logic justification which is fundamental to automatic test pattern generation ATPG redundancy identification logic synthesis minimization verification and other problems in CAD The method is called justification equivalence based on the observation that justification processes may share identical subsequent search decision sequences With justification equivalence duplication of computations is avoided in the dynamic branch and bound search process without using search decision trees Efficient Branch and Bound Search with Application to Computer Aided Design consists of two parts The first part containing the first three chapters provides the theoretical work The second part deals with applications particularly ATPG for sequential circuits This book is particularly useful to readers who are interested in the design and test of digital circuits
