The Artificial Southerner Philip Martin, 2001-01-01 The Artificial Southerner tracks the manifestations and ramifications of Southern identity the relationship among a self conscious invented regionalism the real distinctiveness of Southern culture and the influence of the South in America In these essays columnist Philip Martin explores the region and those who have both fled and embraced it He offers lyric portraits of Southerners real imagined and absentee musicians James Brown the Rolling Stones Johnny Cash writers Richard Ford Eudora Welty politicians Bill Clinton Jimmy Carter He also considers such topics as the architecture of E Fay Jones the biracial nature of country music and the idea of white trash Every American has a South within he says a conquered territory an old wound a scar His work meditates on the rock and roll the literature the life and the love which proceed from that inner self created South

The Postsouthern Sense of Place in Contemporary Fiction Martyn Bone, 2005-06-01 For generations southern novelists and critics have grappled with a concept that is widely seen as a trademark of their literature a strong attachment to geography or a sense of place In the 1930s the Agrarians accorded special meaning to rural life particularly the farm in their definitions of southern identity For them the South seemed an organic and rooted region in contrast to the North where real estate development and urban sprawl evoked a faceless raw capitalism By the end of the twentieth century however economic and social forces had converged to create a modernized South How have writers responded to this phenomenon Is there still a sense of place in the South or perhaps a distinctly postsouthern sense of place Martyn Bone innovatively draws upon postmodern thinking to consider the various perspectives that southern writers have brought to the concept of place and to look at its fate in a national and global context He begins with a revisionist assessment of the Agrarians who failed in their attempts to turn their proprietary ideal of the small farm into actual policy but whose broader rural aesthetic lived on in the work of neo Agrarian writers including William Faulkner and Eudora Welty By the 1950s adherence to this aesthetic was causing southern writers and critics to lose sight of the social reality of a changing South Bone turns to more recent works that do respond to the impact of capitalist spatial development on the South and on the nation generally including that self declared international city Atlanta Close readings of novels by Robert Penn Warren Walker Percy Richard Ford Anne Rivers Siddons Tom Wolfe and Toni Cade Bambara illuminate evolving ideas about capital land labor and class while introducing southern literary studies into wider debates around social cultural and literary geography Bone concludes his remarkably rich book by considering works of Harry Crews and Barbara Kingsolver that suggest the southern sense of place may be not only post Agrarian or postsouthern but also transnational

New Men in Trollope's Novels Dr Margaret Markwick, 2013-04-28 New Men in Trollope's Novels challenges the popular construction of Victorian men as patriarchal despots and suggests that hands on fatherhood may have been a nineteenth century norm Beginning with an evaluation of the evidence for cultural determinations of masculinity during Trollope's times Markwick sets the stage with a discussion of the religious philosophical and educational influences that informed the evolution of Trollope's personal views of masculinity as he grew from boyhood into later manhood Her treatment of his novels drawing on a wide selection from across the oeuvre shows that sensitive examination of Trollope's texts discovers him advancing a startlingly modern model of manhood under a veneer of conformity Trollope's independent views on child rearing education courtship marriage parenthood and gay men are also discussed within the context of Victorian culture in this witty original and immensely knowledgeable study of Victorian masculinity
