We Have Faces A Myth Retold is a 1956 novel by C S Lewis It is a retelling of Cupid and Psyche based on its telling in a chapter of The Golden Ass of Apuleius This story had haunted Lewis all his life because he realized that some of the main characters actions were illogical As a consequence his retelling of the story is characterized by a highly developed character the narrator with the reader being drawn into her reasoning and her emotions This was his last novel and he considered it his most mature written in conjunction with his wife Joy Davidman The first part of the book is written from the perspective of Psyche s older sister Orual as an accusation against the gods The story is set in the fictive kingdom of Glome a primitive city state whose people have occasional contact with civilized Hellenistic Greece In the second part of the book the narrator undergoes a change of mindset Lewis would use the term conversion and understands that her initial accusation was tainted by her own failings and shortcomings and that the gods are lovingly present in humans lives The Christian Mind of C. S. Lewis Andrew J. Spencer, 2019-12-05 C S Lewis embodied the Christian mind because he saw the world as a coherent unity His writing consistently pursued the good the true and the beautiful He used nonfiction to point out the reasonableness of Christianity and used his fiction to create compelling illustrations that make faith in Christ an obvious and attractive conclusion This book explores the Christian mind of C S Lewis across the spectrum of the genres he worked in With contributors from diverse disciplines and interests the volume illuminates the many facets of Lewis s work The Christian Mind of C S Lewis assists readers to read Lewis better and also to read other works better The overarching goal is just as Lewis would have desired to help people see Christ more clearly in the world and to be more like Christ *C.S. Fraser,2020-07-21 As bearers of the divine image all of us are storytellers and artists However few people today believe in truth that is not empirically knowable or verifiable the sort of truth often trafficked through direct forms of communication Drawing on the works of Soren Kierkegaard Benson P Fraser challenges this penchant for direct forms of knowledge by introducing the indirect approach which he argues conveys more than mere knowledge but the capability to live out what one takes to be true Dr Fraser suggests that stories aimed at the heart are powerful instruments for personal and social change because they are not focused directly on the individual listener rather they give the individual room or distance to reconsider old meanings or ways of understanding Indirect communication fosters human transformation by awaking an individual to attend to images or words that carry deep symbolic force and that modify or replace one s present ways of knowing and ultimately make one capable of embodying what he or she believes Through an examination of the indirect approach in Kierkegaard Jesus C S Lewis and Flannery O Connor Fraser makes a strong case for the recovery of indirect strategies for communicating truth in our time Summary of C.
