therapy and personal art groups Decentralised Governance in Tribal India M. Aruna Kumar, 2010-03-08 The potential of civil society in interfacing with the government for ensuring good governance has gained currency in academic and policy debates in the recent times This becomes particularly relevant in an old democracy like India where the State has not been able to meet the need for basic things However the State provides space and freedom for people to engage in collective action to critically evaluate the State's policies and demand a revision in policy for effective implementation of the laws that are elaborately codified in the Constitution and also to improve the functioning of its institutions This book studies the level of participation of tribal communities in the new Panchayat Raj dispensation introduced in Andhra Pradesh since the PESA Act It specifically analyses how much the community has achieved or benefited after the introduction of Panchayat Raj The objective is to determine how the power structures of tribal communities have been influenced by the socio political changes and institutional innovations like the extension of representative democracy at the grassroots level what kind of changes have taken place in the study area with the institutionalization of Panchayats and the politicization of the tribal people by the different parties This book also throws light on the role of civil society actors in influencing governance positively as well as the limitations that have inhibited the impact of their influence The empirical research highlights that the institution of Gram Sabha has been instrumental in bringing transparency and accountability in the working of local bodies The author has rightly emphasized the need for an attitudinal change both in the political and administrative machinery at State district and village level The inter relationship of the three Ds i e Democracy Decentralisation and Development has been brought out beautifully with the support of field study While the 73rd amendment and PESA Act of the Constitution has mandated the democratization of local self governments the process of decentralisation is yet to take concrete shape through real devolution from Lok Sabha to Gram Sabha Dilemmas and Decisions Patrick F. Miller, 2018-04-16 In Dilemmas and Decisions the author argues that dilemmas medical political and personal are clearly universal requiring decisions with a painful choice Nevertheless we are witnessing an increasing tendency amongst opinion leaders from management consultants to religious fundamentalists to inform us that dilemmas either do not really exist or are merely problems awaiting the right solution which they happen to possess Such moral certainty is dangerously mistaken breeding extremism and undermining democratic values Education can become a kind of preparation for Multiple Choice Question type exams or TV quizzes with facts recalled under pressure of time and problems needing fast solutions Problems however are different from dilemmas they have solutions and disappear as soon as these are found Dilemmas leave you with an aftertaste and a sense of regret about the rejected alternative The Essential Practitioner's Handbook of Personal Construct Psychology Fay Fransella, 2005-08-05 This is a concise paperback version of the authoritative International Handbook of Personal Construct Psychology focusing on the practical elements of that volume Ideal for the individual practitioner this selection of chapters covers the basic theory of personal constructs the many skills and tools used by personal construct psychologists its general application to psychotherapy and counselling as well as many specific applications such as cross cultural understanding post traumatic stress children teacher education organizational change nursing and family therapy This is an indispensable guide to theory and skills for those wishing to use the personal construct psychology approach in their practice It will appeal to a wide range of professionals such as psychologists teachers psychiatrists nurses system engineers and managers
