Duyckinck,1873 The Routledge Handbook of Human-Animal Relations in the Byzantine World Przemysław Marciniak,Tristan Schmidt,2024-12-03 Animals have recently become recognized as significant agents of history as part of the animal turn in historical studies Animals in Byzantium were human companions a source of entertainment and food it is small wonder that they made their way into literature and the visual arts Moreover humans defined themselves and their activities by referring to non human animals either by anthropomorphizing animals as in the case of the Cat Mice War or by animalizing humans and their un wanted behaviours The Routledge Handbook of Human Animal Relations in the Byzantine World offers an in depth survey of the relationships between humans and non human animals in the Byzantine Empire The contributions included in the volume address both material zooarchaeology animals as food visual representations of animals and immaterial semiotics philosophy aspects of human animal coexistence in chapters written by leading experts in their field This book will appeal to students and scholars alike researching Byzantine social and cultural history as well as those interested in the history of animals This book marks an important step in the development of animal studies in Byzantium filling a gap in the wider research on the history of human animal relations in the Middle Ages

The Memory of Nature in Aboriginal, Canadian and American Contexts Françoise Besson,Claire Omhové,Héliane Ventura,2014-06-12 This volume engages the reader s interest in the relationship that binds man to nature a relationship which makes itself manifest through certain literary or visual artefacts produced by Native or non Native writers and artists It ranges from the study of literatures mainly from Canada including Quebec and Acadia but also from Britain the United States of America France Turkey and Australia to the exploration of films photographs paintings and sculptures produced by Aboriginal artists from North America Thanks to a relational paradigm founded on spatial and temporal enlargement it re imagines the critical outlook on indigenous production by instigating a dialogue between endogenous and exogenous scholars novelists and artists and by weaving together interdisciplinary approaches spanning anthropology geology ecocriticism and the study of myths From the writings by Scott Momaday to those by Tomson Highway from Pauline Johnson to Louise Erdrich or from the photographs by William McFarlane Notman and Edward Burtynsky or the films by Randy Redroad to the paintings by Emily Carr it explores art as the sedimentation of nature It simultaneously interrogates the representation of nature and the nature of representation as a geological and generic process inscribed in the history of mankind Without eclipsing differences and imposing a reified Eurocentric critical discourse upon indigenous productions this volume does not colonize indigenous texts or indulge in cultural appropriation of works of art but looks for historical mythological or geological traces of the past a past characterized by the intimacy between man and animal man and rock or man and plant a past which is allowed to resurface through the creative and critical outlooks that are bestowed upon its subjacent or subterranean existence It resurfaces not as nostalgic memory but as an interactive fertilization giving the present a new life in which the non human provides a key to the understanding of the human bond to nature

Collecting East and West Andrea M. Gáldy, Adriana Turpin, 2013-09-11 If collecting the rare and valuable is an entirely normal trait of human behaviour amassing objects from far away places has also long played a role in the history of collecting East and West or North and South for that matter are of course entirely relative to one's particular geographical position Therefore it is interesting that collecting exotic objects is an endeavour that unites humanity over millennia and round the globe The ancient Assyrians did so as assiduously as eighteenth century collectors in Paris or London Chinese emperors collected Western art and artefacts at a time when Western collectors started to gather ceramics lacquered furniture or South East Asian prints Key factors were of course increasingly frequent contact and an ever growing knowledge about the other and about the other's artistic production Of particular interest to the mission of this working group is the fact that the building of collections was only part of the endeavour but that in many cases the objects imported at huge cost and logistic effort were meant to be displayed in surroundings reminiscent of their original habitat even though their exact original context may have been open to debate and their final exhibition surroundings may have been unrecognisable to anyone from their former home Western collectors built Chinese cabinets for their exotic treasures often complemented by depictions of Oriental tea parties Less familiar is perhaps the fact that from the seventeenth century onwards Chinese emperors displayed their European collectibles in palaces built for them for this purpose in Western architectural style The essays in the present volume therefore attempt to connect the collections of exotic objects with the forms of display adopted by collectors and institutions and thus chart the levels of increasingly informed and intimate encounters between East and West scholars and collectors art lovers and institutions from the early first millennium BC to the early twentieth century and from South East Asia to North Western Europe
