Forest Monitoring, 2013-03-16 The demand for comparable long term high quality data on forest ecosystems status and changes is increasing at the international and global level Yet sources for such data are limited and in many case it is not possible to compare data from different monitoring initiatives across space and time because of methodological differences Apart from technical manuals there is no comprehensive multidisciplinary scientific peer reviewed reference for forest monitoring methods that can serve and support the user community This book provides in a single reference the state of the art of monitoring methods as applied at the international level The book present scientific concepts and methods that form the basis of the transnational long term forest monitoring in Europe and looks at other initiatives at the global level Standardized methods that have been developed over two decades in international forest monitoring projects are presented Emphasis is put on trans nationally harmonized methods related data quality issues current achievements and on remaining open questions A comprehensive overview of needs requirements organization and possible outcomes of an integrated monitoring program Tested and quality assured internationally harmonized methodologies based on a complete revision of existing methods carried out in 2009 2011 Connection with monitoring results allows assessment of the potential of the monitoring method

The Will of Change Eva-Maria Maggi, 2015-10-13 In this book Eva Maria Maggi argues that the European Union EU had an impact on institutional reform processes in North Africa in cases where major domestic actors agreed She analyzes how political actors in Morocco used EU neighborhood policies to shape economic and environmental policy between 1995 and 2008 Maggi argues that it was not the design of the EU s neighborhood policies but rather the will of change of domestic actors in Morocco that determined the pace direction of reform and the extent to which the EU continues to play a role in them While Moroccan politics were indeed europeanized Maggi highlights the role of domestic actors who so effectively managed to put forth their own policy priorities and essentially moroconized the ENP

paper Currency and monetary policy explained that the currency and macroeconomic framework that operates across the UK would not be able to continue between two separate states In the event of a vote for independence there would be further consequences for the financial sector and for its customers which are analysed in the current paper The most profound implication is that independence would create two separate financial jurisdictions the continuing UK and a new independent Scotland which would require its own legal and regulatory framework The competitiveness of Scotland s financial sector is aided by its location within the UK Industry and international bodies view the UK as a strong tax and regulatory regime building customers and partner organisations trust in UK financial firms Being part of the UK helps support the Scottish financial services sector which generates employment not just in financial services firms but in the professional and other services that support the sector Location in a larger economy also helps to reduce firms cost of borrowing because markets perceive these firms as less of a risk If Scotland became independent this position would be called into question The Scottish banking sector would be exceptionally large compared to the size of an independent Scotland s economy making it more vulnerable to financial shocks than it is as part of the larger UK There could be questions about an independent Scotland s ability to stabilise its banking system in the event of a future financial crisis Manual of Dietetic Practice Joan

The e-Government Development Discourse Kelvin J. Bwalya, 2018-12-01 This book brings out current research and practice concepts articulating the research agenda for e Government When e Government was first conceived it was designed upon basic technologies where the emphasis was only on the simple display of government information for citizens to read Nowadays e Government design comprises many complicated modules such as upload and download consoles two way interaction consoles between citizens and government agents integrated government business processes presenting the whole of government and it does not depend solely on technology The complexity of e Government has now evolved to include political cultural economic social and technical dimensions Bringing all these difficult aspects together is so complicated that it needs carefully planned strategies informed by local contextual characteristics Rather than giving formulaic definitions and conceptual standpoints on many aspects of e Government as is the case in many e Government publications this book will explore the frontiers of global knowledge value chains by discussing current and future dimensions of e Government For example the book discusses the concept of data governance by exploring how actual opening up of government data can be achieved especially in a developing world context Further the book posits that opening government data should be followed by the opening up of government business processes in order to peddle the concept of accountability and responsiveness Much text on data governance has concentrated on articulating the basic definitions surrounding this concept Another very important topic explored in this book is regarding how the concept of decolonisation can be extended to e Government by providing practical examples as to how researchers in the developing world can contribute to the advancement of e Government as a scientific field of enquiry and guide its implementation thereof Decolonisation is advocated for in e Government research so that there is a balance in the inclusion of the Afrocentric knowledge into e Government advancement other than over reliance on the Euro Asia and America centric knowledge value chains Mbembe 2015 As e Government is a very expensive undertaking the issue of funding has excluded African countries and a majority of the developing world from implementing e Government Despite funding being a critical cornerstone of e Government development there is a dearth of information on this topic Therefore this book provides a chapter which discusses traditional and innovative ways of funding e Government design and implementation which can go a long way in improving e Government penetration into the developing world Further the book explores how intelligent e Government applications can be designed especially in resource constrained countries A couple of emerging technology innovations such as fog computing and intelligent information technology are explored within the realm of e Government design
