

Shoulder Dystocia: Comparison of the ACOG Practice Bulletin with Another National Guideline

Suneet P. Chauhan, M.D.,¹ Robert Gherman, M.D.,³ Nancy W. Hendrix, M.D.,⁴ Jemel M. Bingham, M.D.,¹ and Edward Hayes, M.D.²

ABSTRACT

Our objective was to compare national guidelines regarding shoulder dystocia. Along with the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) practice bulletin on shoulder dystocia, guidelines from England, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand were reviewed. The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (RCOG) guideline agrees with the ACOG definition of shoulder dystocia, but there are variances in the management of suspected macrosomia and resolution of impacted shoulders. How recommendations are categorized differ also. Only 53% (20 of 38) of eligible references are cited by both publications. The two national guidelines on shoulder dystocia have differences and disagreements with each other, raising concerns about how the literature is synthesized and which is more comprehensive.

KEYWORDS: Shoulder dystocia, ACOG, RCOG, national guidelines

Although occurring in ~2% of vaginal deliveries, and lasting less than a few minutes, clinicians involved with delivery have been preoccupied with shoulder dystocia.¹ A PubMed search with the terms "shoulder dystocia" provides 719 citations with 621 of them in English, and a Google search of these two words offers 146,000 citations in 0.13 seconds (October 14, 2008). Considering that impacted shoulders need to be delivered within minutes, that there is potential for neurological and orthopedic injury, and infrequently neonatal mortality,¹ it is understandable why it is called the nightmare and why we are engrossed with the topic.

Although there are several sources to learn from and understand the topic, national guidelines are ideal because they synthesize the literature objectively, provide simple recommendations on how to manage the emergency optimally, and protect against litigation.² The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) publishes practice bulletins; the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (RCOG), green guidelines; the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecology (SOGC) of Canada, clinical practical guidelines; and the Royal Australian New Zealand College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (RANZCOG), clinical statements.^{3–6} Our previous review of the four national guidelines on the topic of small for gestational age infants⁷ was instructive because it noted that remarkable variation in guidelines. Thus, it occurred to us that comparison of guidelines on shoulder dystocia would be illustrative of practices in different countries
