Ministering Spiritually to Families William Jeynes, Enedina Martinez, 2015-01-10 This book

combines the research on spiritual ministering with the practice of counseling families. It examines such topics as how to prepare for marriage, how to keep a marriage divorce proof, and how parents influence children and vice versa. In its quest to discover what makes families thrive, the book addresses and compares best parenting practices and describes interventions that help the development of family ties over a large span of the life course. It offers guidance to families through several stages of family life: Pre marital, marital, and raising children and adolescents. It makes clear that what constitutes an effective parent changes over the life course.

Getting Back on Track Jo-Anna Culy, 2016-12-05. Imagine a church where many of the needs of younger women are being met by trained older women. It would not be a problem free church, but it would be a healthy church where pastors are free to focus on their biblical responsibilities. Although younger women need the guidance of godly older women, more than ever, older women remain the most untapped resource in the church today. Some feel dispensable, undervalued, or overlooked. Many simply don't understand the role God calls them to have with younger women or know how to fulfill it. Getting Back on Track is an invitation to discover from Scripture what the role of the biblical mentor is and how God wants to use older women to help move younger women toward maturity in Christ. It is solidly grounded in Scripture from beginning to end and is written for the older woman, church leader, or younger woman who aspires to be a godly older woman someday.

Missional fatherhood as praxis to Christian families who grapple with father absence Fazel Ebriham Freeks, 2021-12-01. All human beings are made in the image of God and form part of God's creation. Families per se are valuable to God, and they can be infused with God-given solutions biblically based to the challenges they are facing. One of these challenges is father absence, and it is a devastated social ill in many communities. Even so, missional fatherhood can be a buffer against father absence, involvement of fathers, and numerous family issues. Missional fathers are filled with a God-given mission aiming to instill a love for Christ in the hearts of their children. They are not only called but obliged to lead sacrificial lives for the sake of their families. Their hearts engage with their children on aspects in life that matters the most. Transforming their minds by the Word of God and serving God the Father is far reaching. Missional fathers are not only disciple makers in their homes but also in their respective communities. This present-day notion is God's calling on every father to be part of the Gospel and God's holistic mission and is in response to Jesus's Great Commission to make disciples of all people, including families. All who decided and turn to the way of Jesus Christ form part of the mission that God had given the Son.

Rise Up, O Men of God L. Dean Allen, 2002. L. Dean Allen analyzes both groups' constructions of masculinity and social ethics in relation to the family, the church, and a prominent social issue. Evangelical Christian leaders designed both organizations in response to their alarm at men's absence from evangelical churches, and they sought to increase men's participation in churches and to improve society as a whole by their efforts. Each group faced important social changes during its era, such as new economic realities, women's activities, and perceived moral crises. Despite their similarities as groups for evangelical Christian men only, MRFM and PK developed contrasting constructions of masculinity and divergent
