HC 398 - BBC Charter Review Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Culture, Media, and Sport Committee, 2016 The BBC is an extraordinary national and global institution Often one of the very few things people outside this country know about Britain is that it is the home of the BBC The BBC's value lies not only in the organisation itself but in its accumulated reputation experience and goodwill in its public service remit and in its place at the centre of a vibrant broadcasting industry It sets a standard in broadcasting quality impartiality and independence that serves as a benchmark for others For these reasons the BBC has a vast amount to contribute as an international standard of excellence in public service broadcasting At a time when many media organisations are reducing their international coverage relying on a few feeds and becoming more prone to crowd behaviour there is a huge opportunity for the BBC to consolidate this global position But the BBC also has a role as a beacon of enlightened values of openness freedom of thought toleration and diversity As the world increasingly divides on ideological and sectarian grounds it is vital more than ever today to preserve an educated public realm in which civilised debate and the mutually respectful exchange of ideas may flourish What would it take to create another It is very hard to imagine how it could be done Yet this does not mean the BBC is beyond improvement or secure from technological financial or commercial challenge First its core activities are under serious commercial threat from traditional competitors from new online insurgents from lower cost providers of access to high quality programming among others New technologies and ways of accessing programmes are pushing the BBC to consider long term alternatives to the licence fee Secondly the BBC is not well served by its often unwieldy bureaucracy its internal politics and a culture which has been criticised as arrogant and introspective And finally the BBC's Director General has argued that the licence fee is viable for the coming Charter period But as commercial and technological pressures converge as the BBC's market share continues to fall and a new generation consumes its media in innumerable new ways there is the question whether or not the licence fee funding model can be sustained

Seeking Truth in International TV News Vivien Marsh, 2023-03-17 This book puts CGTN formerly CCTV News and the BBC's international television news head to head interrogating competing truths in the exacting business of news reporting Written by a media scholar and former long serving BBC News journalist Seeking Truth in International TV News asks if China's English language television news programmes are little more than state propaganda and if the BBC can be viewed as a universal news standard to which all other broadcasters should aspire Over 8 years of Xi Jinping's rule it investigates how the international TV news channels of CGTN and the BBC reported on Chinese politics protests in Hong Kong disasters in Africa and insurgency and its suppression in Xinjiang The comparison reveals uneven editorial imperatives at the Chinese broadcaster and raises questions about the BBC's professed tenets of balance and impartiality It also illustrates how Chinese journalists commit small acts of journalism that push the boundaries of information control A rigorous analysis of reportage from the two channels this book will be relevant to scholars of global media journalism international relations and public diplomacy It will also interest those in academia the media and international affairs who want to examine the nature of news and soft power in a comparative context BBC World Service Gordon Johnston, Emma Robertson, 2019-11-14 This book is the first full length history of the BBC World Service from its interwar launch as short wave radio broadcasts for the British Empire to its twenty first century incarnation as the multi media global platform of the British Broadcasting Corporation The book provides insights into the BBC s working relationship with the Foreign Office the early years of the Empire Service and the role of the BBC during the Second World War In following the voice of the BBC through the Cold War and the contraction of the British empire the book argues that debates about the work and purposes of the World Service have always involved deliberations about the future of the UK and its place in the world In current times these debates have been shaped by the British government s commitment to leave the European Union and the centrifugal currents in British politics which in the longer term threaten the integrity of the United Kingdom Through a detailed exploration of its past the book poses questions about the World Service s possible future and argues that for the BBC the question is not only what it means to be a global broadcaster as we enter the third decade of the twenty first century but what it means to be a national broadcaster in a divided kingdom Jihadism in the Russian-Speaking World Danis Garaev, 2022-08-29 This book contends that the discourses of jihadism in Russia s North Caucasus and their offshoots in other parts of the Russian Federation are not just reflections of jihadi ideologies that came from abroad rather that post Soviet jihadism is a phenomenon best understood when placed in the broader cultural environment in which it emerged an environment which comprises the North Caucasus the whole of Russia and beyond It examines how post Soviet jihadism is also part of global processes in this case global jihadism explores how post Soviet jihadism bears the imprint of the preceding Soviet context especially in terms of symbols discursive tools interpretational frameworks and dissemination strategies and discusses how ironically Russian speaking jihadism is an expansionist idea for uniting all Russian regions on a supra ethnic principle but an idea that was not born in Moscow or St Petersburg Overall the book demonstrates that Russian speaking jihadism is a completely new ideology which nevertheless has its origins in the intellectual and cultural heritage of the Soviet era and in the broader trends of post Soviet society and culture No News is Bad News Michael Bromley, Hugh Stephenson, 2014-09-11 This volume of collected essays provides a wide ranging survey of the state of radio and television especially the idea of public service broadcasting and of news current affairs and documentary programming in America Australia the UK and the rest of western Europe Among the key issues it addresses are the dumbing down of TV news the infotainment factor in current affairs shows and the disappearance of the documentary Using contemporary cases and examples from the row over the scheduling of News at Ten in the UK to the creation of ABC News Online in Australia the essays link the performance of radio and television at the turn of the millennium with the processes of deregulation liberalisation and digitalisation which have been evident since the 1980s Working from a much needed and original comparative approach which encompasses complex and well established public broadcasting in the USA as well as emerging and vulnerable participatory radio stations in El Salvador the book sets a variety of experiences of factual radio and television programming within wider political and cultural contexts It offers analyses of not only the problems associated with news current affairs and documentary broadcasting in an era of a declining public service ethos and the apparent triumph of the market however The essays also explore the potential of alternative radio and television new forms of communication such as the internet and changing practices among journalists and programme makers as well as the resilience of public broadcasting and the powers of the public to ensure that the media remain relevant and accountable A companion text to the bestselling Sex Lies and Democracy The Press and the Public this volume presents a multi faceted approach to the tumultuous present and the uncertain future of news current affairs and documentary in radio and television

Everything for Sale? The Marketisation of UK Higher Education Roger Brown, Helen Carasso, 2013-02-11 The marketisation of higher education is a growing worldwide trend Increasingly market steering is replacing or supplementing government steering Tuition fees are being introduced or increased usually at the expense of state grants to institutions Grants for student support are being replaced or supplemented by loans Commercial rankings and league tables to guide student choice are proliferating with institutions devoting increasing resources to marketing branding and customer service The UK is a particularly good example of this not only because it is a country where marketisation has arguably proceeded furthest but also because of the variations that exist as Scotland Wales and Northern Ireland increasingly diverge from England In Everything for Sale Roger Brown argues that the competitive regime that is now applicable to our Higher Education system was the logical and possibly inevitable outcome of a process that began with the introduction of full cost fees for overseas students in 1980 Through chapters including Markets and Non Markets The Institutional Pattern of Provision The Funding of Research The Funding of Student Education Quality Assurance The Impact of Marketisation Efficiency diversity and equity He shows how the evaluation and funding of research the funding of student education quality assurance and the structure of the system have increasingly been organised on market or quasi market lines As well as helping to explain the evolution of British higher education over the past thirty years the book contains some important messages about the consequences of introducing or extending market competition in universities core activities of teaching and research This timely and comprehensive book is essential reading for all academics at University level and anyone involved in Higher Education policy

EBOOK: Gender and the Changing Face of Higher Education: A Feminized Future? Carole Leathwood, Barbara Read, 2008-12-16 A notable feature of higher education in many countries over the last few decades has been the dramatic rise in the proportion of female students Women now outnumber men as undergraduate students in the majority of OECD countries fuelling concerns that men are deserting degree level study as women overtake them both numerically and in terms of levels of achievement. The assertion is that higher education is becoming increasingly feminized reflecting similar claims in relation to schooling and the labour market. At the same time there are persistent concerns about degree standards with allegations of dumbing down. This raises questions about whether the higher education system to which more women have gained access is now of less value both intrinsically and in terms of labour market outcomes than previously. This ground breaking book examines these issues in relation to higher education in the UK and globally. It provides a thorough analysis of debates about feminization asking: To what extent do patterns of participation continue to reflect and re-construct wider social inequalities of gender, social class and ethnicity? How far has a numerical increase in women students challenged the cultures, curriculum and practices of the university? What are the implications for women, men and the future of higher education? Drawing on international and national data, theory and research, Gender and the Changing Face of Higher Education provides an accessible but nuanced discussion of the feminization of higher education for postgraduates, policy makers and academics working in the field.

Cultural Mega-Events and Heritage Davide Ponzini, 2023-03-21. This book analyses case studies of heritage rich cities that hosted mega events to discuss emerging challenges, controversies and accomplishments. The future of mega events has never been more uncertain. The ongoing COVID 19 pandemic has introduced an unparalleled level of doubt regarding the kind of mega events that will take place in the coming years. This book arrives at a quite unique moment of reflection. Prior to 2020 cities were already questioning the traditional format of mega events e.g. Olympics and Expo while other cultural mega events have been spreading and gaining popularity thanks in part to typically lower costs of infrastructures and venues, far more adaptable arrangements, spatial distribution and time frame for hosting. In these ways they have already been demonstrating higher flexibility in which to respond to future health and safety constraints. When it comes to the relation to the existing city, cultural mega events have been planned, implemented and studied far more than any other. By leveraging the richness of cultural mega events, this multidisciplinary collection deepens the intersection between events and cultural heritage. The chapters in this book provide a new theoretical framework, critical questions and relevant case studies to argue that the nexus between mega events and heritage is a key challenge for many cities in Europe and beyond. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of European Planning Studies.
