The Politics of Public Broadcasting in Britain and Japan Henry Laurence, 2022-07-29 The BBC and NHK have dominated their national media systems since the 1920s and still play a central role in shaping political social and cultural life Both are highly trusted news organizations and vitally influence national identity Yet despite remarkably similar organizational and funding structures they differ in their editorial autonomy relationship to the state and in the social and cultural roles they play While the BBC proud of its independence acts as a watchdog on the powerful NHK prefers a guide dog role cooperating with rather than confronting political elites The BBC is also more willing to challenge prevailing social norms often serving as an agent of social change NHK prefers to avoid controversy serving as an agent of social stability The book argues that these differences were shaped by decades of conflict and cooperation between broadcasters governments commercial media interest groups and audiences The broadcasters adopted distinctive editorial strategies to retain public support and elite approval in the face of technological upheaval hostility from commercial rivals and continuous political interference Both however continue to uphold the belief that democratic and social goals are better served by public rather than commercial media
