Transforming Criminal Justice? Jane Donoghue, 2014-04-03 Why is punishment not more effective Why do we have such high re offending rates How can we deal with crime and criminals in a more cost effective way Over the last decade in particular the United Kingdom in common with other jurisdictions such as Canada the United States US and Australia has sought to develop more effective ways of responding to criminal behaviour through court reforms designed to address specific manifestations of crime Strongly influenced by developments in US court specialisation problem solving and specialist courts including domestic violence courts drugs courts community courts and mental health courts have proliferated in Britain over the last few years These courts operate at the intersection of criminal law and social policy and appear to challenge much of the traditional model of court practice In addition policy makers and practitioners have made significant attempts to try to embed problem solving approaches into the criminal justice system more widely Through examination of original data gathered from detailed interviews with judges magistrates and other key criminal justice professionals in England and Wales as well as analysis of legislative and policy interventions this book discusses the impact of the creation and development of court specialisation and problem solving justice This book will be essential reading for students and academics in the fields of criminology criminal justice criminal law socio legal studies and sociology as well as for criminal justice practitioners and policy makers
