Moonshadows Cowherds (Authors), 2011. In Moonshadows, the Cowherds, a team of ten scholars of Buddhist Studies, address the nature of conventional truth as it is understood in the Madhyamaka tradition deriving from Nagarjuna and Candrakirti. Moonshadows combines textual scholarship with philosophical analysis to elucidate the metaphysical, epistemological, and ethical consequences of this doctrine. Moonshadows, The Cowherds, 2010-12-24. The doctrine of the two truths, a conventional truth and an ultimate truth, is central to Buddhist metaphysics and epistemology. The two truths or two realities, the distinction between them, and the relation between them is understood variously in different Buddhist schools and is of special importance to the Madhyamaka school. The fundamental ideas are articulated with particular force by Nagarjuna, 2nd-3rd century CE, who famously claims that the two truths are identical to one another and yet distinct. One of the most influential interpretations of Nagarjuna's difficult doctrine derives from the commentary of Candrakirti, 6th century CE. While much attention has been devoted to explaining the nature of the ultimate truth in view of its special soteriological role, less has been paid to understanding the nature of conventional truth, which is often described as deceptive illusion or truth for fools. But conventional truth is nonetheless truth. This book therefore asks what is true about conventional truth and what are the implications of an understanding of conventional truth for our lives.
