Psychopathology at School Valerie Harwood, Julie Allan, 2014-03-26 Psychopathology at School provides a timely response to concerns about the rising numbers of children whose behaviour is recognised and understood as a medicalised condition rather than simply as poor behaviour caused by other factors It is the first scholarly analysis of psychopathology which draws on the philosophers Foucault Deleuze Guattari and Arendt to examine the processes whereby children s behaviour is pathologised The heightened attention to mental disorders is contrasted with education practices in the early and mid to late twentieth century and the emergence of a new conceptualization of childhood is explored Taking education as a central component to the contemporary experience of growing up the book charts the ways in which mental disorders have become commonplace in childhood and youth from birth through to college and university but also offers examples of where professionals have refused to pathologise children s behaviour The book examines the extent of the influence of psychopathology on the lives of children and young people as well as the practices that infiltrate education and the possibilities for alternative educational responses that negate the diagnosis of mental disorder Psychopathology at School is a must read for anyone concerned about the growing influence of psychopathology in education and will be of particular interest to educated readers and to scholars students and professionals in education psychiatry psychology child studies youth studies nursing social work and sociology

Mass Shootings and Civilian Armament Alexei Anisin, 2021-11-18 Mass Shootings and Civilian Armament provides the first comprehensive multi methodological analysis of the relationship between mass shootings and firearm purchases as proxied by background checks in the US on national level data from 1999 2020 Since 1994 the number of civilian owned firearms in the US has doubled to around 398 million while the population only grew by 70 million On average mass shootings have occurred once every two weeks over the last decade which is a major factor behind why social scientists have started to ask whether mass shootings play a causative role in civilian decisions to purchase guns Utilizing a multi methodological approach featuring quantitative comparative configurational and qualitative methods this book puts forward a theoretical framework and argues that mass shootings do increase civilian armament but that this repetitious effect is historically contingent asymmetric and non linear

Particular types of mass shootings are hypothesized to have driven and continue to bring about increased levels of civilian firearm purchases through different pathways and combinations of variables those that feature high fatality counts arise in areas of cultural importance are ideologically motivated First inquiry into background check data 1999 2020 and data on 213 mass shootings and attempted mass shootings is carried out to find out which shootings as well as controls are significantly correlated with background check increases Second the findings are utilized in a theoretically driven comparative configurational assessment to test if the noted theoretical pathways are associated with the outcome of increased post shooting armament Third the empirical analyses are complimented by three case studies the 2011 Gabrielle Giffords shooting illustrative of the high fatality pathway the 2012 Colorado movie theater shooting illustrative of the cultural pathway and the 2015 Charleston Church shooting illustrative of the ideologically driven pathway Interdisciplinary in nature Mass Shootings and Civilian Armament will not only be of great interest to scholars of Criminology but will also speak to sociologists economists public policy scholars political scientists historians as well as cultural studies and American studies scholars

Who's Afraid of China? Doctor Michael Barr, 2012-06-14 If China suddenly democratised would it cease being labelled as a threat This provocative book argues that fears of China often say as much about those who hold them as they do about the rising power itself It focuses not on the usual trope of economic and military might but on China's growing cultural influence and the connections between China's domestic politics and its attempts to brand itself internationally Using examples from film education media politics and art Who's Afraid of China is both an introduction to Chinese soft power and a critical analysis of international reaction to it It examines how the West's own past hopes and fears shape the way it thinks about and engages with China and argues that the rising power touches a nerve in the Western psyche presenting a fundamental challenge to ideas about modernity history and international relations

Reluctant Celebrity Lorraine York, 2018-01-17 In this book Lorraine York examines the figure of the celebrity who expresses discomfort with his or her intense condition of social visibility Bringing together the fields of celebrity studies and what Ann Cvetkovich has called the affective turn in cultural studies York studies the mixed affect of reluctance as it is performed by public figures in the entertainment industries Setting aside the question of whether these performances are offered in good faith or not York theorizes reluctance as the affective meeting ground of seemingly opposite emotions disinclination and inclination The figures under study in this book are John Cusack Robert De Niro and Daniel Craig three white straight cis gendered male cinematic stars who have persistently and publicly expressed a feeling of reluctance about their celebrity York examines how the performance of reluctance which is generally admired in celebrities builds up cultural prestige that can then be turned to other purposes

Tragedy in Aurora Tom Diaz, 2019-10-31 Tragedy in Aurora is about the 2012 murder of budding sports journalist Jessica Jessi Redfield Ghawi in a public mass shooting and the widening circle of pain it inflicted on her family friends police medical first responders and others The book is at the same time a deep examination of the causes and potential cures of the quintessential 21st century American sickness public mass shootings At the heart of that examination is an unpacking of America's deep polarization and political gridlock It addresses head on the question of why Why is American gun violence so different from other countries Why does nothing seem to change The Parkland kids inspired hope of change But the ultimate questions stubbornly remain what should what can and what will Americans do to reduce gun violence Tragedy in Aurora argues that the answer lies in a conscious cultural redefinition of American civic order Over recent decades America has defined a cultural new normal about guns and gun violence Americans express formalistic dismay after every public mass shooting But many accept gun violence as an inevitable even necessary and to some laudable part of what it means to be American Although Americans claim to be shocked with each new outrage so far they have failed to coalesce around an effective way to reduce gun death and injury The debate is bogged down in polarized and profoundly ideological political and cultural argument Meanwhile America continues to lead the globe in its pandemic levels of gun deaths and injuries Combined with the cynical learned helplessness of its politicians the result is gridlock and a growing roll of victims of carnage Is there a path out of this cultural and political gridlock Tragedy in Aurora argues that if America is to reduce gun violence it must expand the debate and confront the fundamental question of who are we Tom Diaz gives a new understanding of American culture and the potential for change offered by the growing number and ongoing organization of victims and survivors of gun violence Without conscious cultural change the book argues there is little prospect of effective laws or public policy to reduce gun violence in general and public mass shootings in particular
