The Only Constant in HRM Today is Change Dianna L. Stone, James H. Dulebohn, 2019-04-01 In this issue of Research Human Resource Management we consider some of the challenges facing organizations today including changes in the population the increased competition for talent and the rise in the use of technology The issue also includes a number of thought provoking articles that describe strategies for developing sound theories in our field discuss the consequences of growing diversity in organizations consider the factors affecting the success of virtual teams present methods for increasing emotion control for incumbents in emotionally laden jobs and discuss leadership and performance management in virtual teams The first article in this issue compares prospect theory to goal setting theory and highlights the critical elements needed for theory development in our field A second article reviewed the literature published from 1976 to 2017 in the Academy of Management Review the primary theoretical journal in management and identified the factors associated with the most effective theories published over the last forty years In view of the growing diversity in organizations the next article provided a ranking of individual attributes that might be viewed as stigmatizing in organizations The findings revealed that blemishes of character e.g. criminality drug addiction were viewed as most stigmatizing followed by abominations of the body e.g. paralysis leg amputation and the least stigmatizing attributes were tribal stigmas e.g. ethnicity religion The fourth article focuses on a similar topic and presents an interesting model of the factors thought to influence weight based bias Both of these articles have important implications for overcoming unfair discrimination and increasing the inclusion of all individuals in organizations The next article offers an input throughput output model of virtual teams and reviews the literature on each of the variables thought to influence the success of these teams Given that many customer service jobs in the new economy involve high levels of emotional labor the sixth article reviews the strategies that can be used to train employees on emotion regulation in these challenging jobs The final article suggests that leadership and performance management should be aligned with the new team centric structure of organizations in order to enhance team and organizational performance In particular they maintained that organizations need to adopt positive and relational leadership and redesign performance appraisals to support the new team processes They also recommended that organizations discontinue the use of forced distribution performance ranking systems We are confident that these articles will inspire new ideas among researchers in our field and foster additional theory and research on these important topics The Variscan Orogen of Central Europe Ulf Linnemann,2025-08-27 The book is written by international team of specialized geoscientists and represents the current knowledge of the evolution of the Variscan Orogen in Central Europe After a preface the geotectonic position of the mountain belt within the supercontinent Pangea and the zoning of the orogen is described Chapter 1 The birth of the Central European Variscides and the role of the Avalonian and Cadomian orogenic processes as forerunners of the Central European Variscides is presented also in Chapter 1 The big building blocks of the Variscan orogen north and south of the Rhine suture are lined out in detail in the main part of the book Chapters 2 to 18 After the description of the igneous activity in Permo Carboniferous time Chapter 19 neotectonic reactivation Chapter 20 current models for Variscan orogenic processes Chapter 21 and the zircon data base Chapter 22 are briefly characterized A final major section Chapters 23 to 29 includes geobiological palaeontological and palaeoenvironmental data including event stratigraphy relevant for Variscan plate tectonics The book is written for an international readership of professional geoscientists of students of natural sciences and of people interested in the formation and geology of Central Europe Cumulated Index Medicus ,1984 Index Medicus ,2002-12 Vols for 1963 include as pt 2 of the Jan issue Medical subject headings

Corcoran,2006-06-01 What are we as human persons Are we immaterial souls capable of disembodied existence or merely animals destined to dust For centuries scholars have debated this issue and that debate continues today But the question of human nature can no longer remain a topic for discussion within the hallowed halls of the academy End of life ethical decisions human cloning fetal tissue transplants and stem cell research all reveal the urgency and the importance of the question for ordinary people Rethinking Human Nature offers a fascinating look at what it means to be human by defending the constitutional view which suggests we are constituted by our bodies without being identical to the bodies that constitute us Grounded in Scripture this book connects the theology and philosophy of human nature with the moral conundrums that
