Cruising World, 1999-01 Cruising World, 1999-01 Cruising World, 1999-01 The New Walford Guide to Reference Resources Ray Lester, 2005 The New Walford highlights the best resources to use when undertaking a search for accurate and relevant information saving you precious time and effort For those looking for a selective and evaluative reference resource that really delivers on its promise look no further In addition to print sources The New Walford naturally covers an extensive range of e reference sources such as digital databanks digital reference services electronic journal collections meta search engines networked information services open archives resource discovery services and websites of premier organizations in both the public and private sectors But rather than supplying a list of all available known resources as a web search engine might The New Walford subject specialists have carefully selected and evaluated available resources to provide a definitive list of the most appropriate and useful With an emphasis on quality and sustainability the subject specialists have been careful to assess the differing ways that information is framed and communicated in different subject areas As a result the resource evaluations in each subject area are prefaced by an introductory overview of the structure of the relevant literature This ensures that The New Walford is clear easy to use and intuitive Publisher El-Hi Textbooks & Serials in Print, 2003, 2003 A World of Weather Jon M. Nese, 1996 Fundamentals of Weather and Climate Robin McIlveen, 1998 An introduction to the behaviour and mechanisms of the lower atmosphere which aims to fill a gap between texts describing meteorological behaviour with no account of the mechanisms and others which tackle the theoretical framework but assume readers are already familiar with atmospheric behaviour Inventing Atmospheric Science James Rodger Fleming, 2016-02-05 How scientists used transformative new technologies to understand the complexities of weather and the atmosphere told through the intertwined careers of three key figures The goal of meteorology is to portray everything atmospheric everywhere always declared John Bellamy and Harry Wexler in 1960 soon after the successful launch of TIROS 1 the first weather satellite Throughout the twentieth century meteorological researchers have had global ambitions incorporating technological advances into their scientific study as they worked to link theory with practice Wireless telegraphy radio aviation nuclear tracers rockets digital computers and Earth orbiting satellites opened up entirely new research horizons for meteorologists In this book James Fleming charts the emergence of the interdisciplinary field of atmospheric science through the lives and careers of three key figures Vilhelm Bjerknes 1862 1951 Carl Gustaf Rossby 1898 1957 and Harry Wexler 1911 1962 In the early twentieth century Bjerknes worked to put meteorology on solid observational and theoretical foundations His younger colleague the innovative and influential Rossby built the first graduate program in meteorology at MIT trained aviation cadets during World War II and was a pioneer in numerical weather prediction and atmospheric chemistry Wexler one of Rossby's best students became head of research at the U S Weather Bureau where he developed new technologies from radar and rockets to computers and satellites conducted research on the Antarctic ice

sheet and established carbon dioxide measurements at the Mauna Loa Observatory in Hawaii He was also the first meteorologist to fly into a hurricane an experience he chose never to repeat Fleming maps both the ambitions of an evolving field and the constraints that checked them war bureaucracy economic downturns and most important the ultimate realization prompted by the formulation of chaos theory in the 1960s by Edward Lorenz that perfectly accurate measurements and forecasts would never be possible
