A Woman Rice Planter Southern Classics Series:

A Woman Rice Planter Elizabeth Allston Pringle, 2021-11-24 A Woman Rice Planter offers insights into a broad spectrum of Southern life after the Civil War. As an account of a woman's struggle for survival and dignity in a distinctly male dominated society, it contributes significantly to women's history. It presents a rich portrait of a distinctive place, the South Carolina Low Country, in a troubled and generally undocumented time, a portrait made all the more vivid by the fine pen and ink sketches of Charleston artist Alice R. Huger Smith. Elizabeth Alston Pringle was the daughter of Robert Francis Withers Allston, a state legislator and governor who was at one time owner of seven plantations but bankrupt at the time of his death. Left to struggle for income to regain the property and position the family held prior to the war, Pringle turned to writing and eventually published a column on Southern culture in the New York Sun under the pseudonym Patience Pennington. In 1913 she collected and reshaped these newspaper columns and compiled them into one volume, A Woman Rice Planter, a best selling book that reduced her financial worries. Her descriptions of the vagaries of rice planting, of her relationships with former slaves and the first generation of free born African Americans, and of her life in the early Reconstruction period are important to our understanding of the prevailing attitudes and persistence of the Old South in the New. The volume was illustrated by Alice R. Huger Smith, 1876-1958, an American painter and printmaker. This edition features an introduction by Charles Joyner, 1935-2016, distinguished professor emeritus of southern history and culture at Coastal Carolina University and author of several books including Down by the Riverside: A South Carolina Slave Community. The South Carolina Rice Plantation as Revealed in the Papers of Robert F. W. Allston Robert Francis Withers Allston, 2004. The reissue of The South Carolina Rice Plantation as Revealed in the Papers of Robert F. W. Allston makes available for a new generation of readers a firsthand look at one of South Carolina's most influential antebellum dynasties and the institutions of slavery and plantation agriculture upon which it was built. Often cited by historians, Robert F. W. Allston's letters, speeches, receipts, and ledger entries chronicle both the heyday of the rice industry and its precipitate crash during the Civil War. As Daniel C. Littlefield underscores in his introduction to the new edition, these papers are significant not only because of Allston's position at the apex of planter society but also because his views represented those of the rice planter elite. A Woman Rice Planter Elizabeth Waties Allston Pringle, Patience Pennington, 1992. A collection of Pringle's weekly columns in the New York Sun. Her father had been a governor and a rice planter. Her family spent summers on Pawley's Island and owned the Nathaniel Russell House in Charleston. Louisiana History, 1993. When Southern Women Cook America's Test Kitchen, 2024-11-12.
