We Do Know How James T. Riordan,2014-09-24 An insider with practical experience in development work reveals how understanding market realities can more effectively reduce poverty This book by a practitioner not an academic government official or pundit has been written for practitioners and offers fresh thinking on how to do international development work It combines that thinking with practical guidance in plain English on what to do and perhaps just as importantly what not to do on the ground We Do Know How takes buzzwords commonly used in development circles demand driven results oriented accountability and others and makes them real spelling out a proven approach for expanding business sales and generating jobs for poor people Although government has a role to play in development in the end the actions of businesses drive economic growth and expand people s incomes We Do Know How shows how to build on the incentives that drive businesses and in the process create jobs for the poor Specifically it urges development practitioners to support only those business opportunities for which there is market demand abiding by the maxim produce what you can sell not sell what you produce More than that it cautions practitioners not to become solutions looking for problems but to search creatively for ways to solve the specific problems that stand most in the way of clients meeting buyers requirements We Do Know How challenges much conventional wisdom on how to do development work At the same time and in contrast to other books on development it shows how by maintaining focus and discipline development practitioners can deliver demonstrable increases in jobs for those who need them Daily Graphic Yaw Boadu-Ayeboafah,2005-01-07 Entrepreneurship and Enterprise Development in Africa Daniel

Agricultural Innovation Systems The World Bank,2012-02-21 Managing the ability of agriculture to meet rising global demand and to respond to the changes and opportunities will require good policy sustained investments and innovation not business as usual Investments in public Research and Development extension education and their links with one another have elicited high returns and pro poor growth but these investments alone will not elicit innovation at the pace or on the scale required by the intensifying and proliferating challenges confronting agriculture Experience indicates that aside from a strong capacity in Research and Development the ability to innovate is often related to collective action coordination the exchange of knowledge among diverse actors the incentives and resources available to form partnerships and develop businesses and conditions that make it possible for farmers or entrepreneurs to use the innovations While consensus is developing about what is meant by innovation and innovation system no detailed blueprint exists for making agricultural innovation happen at a given time in a given place for a given result The AIS approach that looks at these multiple conditions and relationships that promote innovation in agriculture has however moved from a concept to a sub discipline with principles of analysis and action AIS investments must be specific to the context responding to the stage of development in a particular country and agricultural sector especially the AIS This sourcebook contributes to identifying designing and implementing the investments approaches and complementary interventions that appear most likely to strengthen AIS and to promote agricultural innovation and equitable growth It emphasizes the lessons learned benefits and impacts implementation issues and prospects for replicating or expanding successful practices The information in this sourcebook derives from approaches that have been tested at different scales in different contexts It reflects the experiences and evolving understanding of numerous individuals and organizations concerned with agricultural innovation including the World Bank This information is targeted to the key operational staff in international and regional development agencies and national governments who design and implement lending projects and to the practitioners who design thematic programs and technical assistance packages The sourcebook can also be an important resource for the research community and nongovernmental organizations NGOs Daily Graphic I.K.
