

her hair was three-quarters her height which made me a strong believer in the samson 2 my and very black

[25] i'm sure i just hung there by the door i remember thinking: what a beautiful lady she was very deliberately 3 waiting perhaps for my father to come home from his night job or maybe for a dream

[30] that had promised to come by "come here" she said "i'll teach you a poem:

i see the moon

the moon sees me

[35] god bless the moon and god bless me"

i taught it to my son who recited it for her just to say we must learn as we have borne the pains

The Poetry of He Zhu (1052-1125) Stuart

Sargent, 2007-03-31 The Northern Song poet He Zhu is best known for his lyrics ci but also produced shi poetry of subtlety, wit and feeling. This study examines the latter as a response to the options available to a late eleventh century writer in the pentametrical and heptametrical forms of Ancient Verse, Regulated Verse and Quatrains. Numerous comparisons are made with Su Shi, Huang Tingjian, Du Fu and other important writers. In a major advance over previous methodologies, the author uses a clear system of metrical notation to show how sound patterns reveal the poet's artistic and emotional intentions. This innovation and the author's other meticulous explorations of He Zhu's artistry allow us to experience Chinese poetry as never before. From the reader's report, not just an excellent study of an individual poet but also a model of reading the language of classical Chinese poetry, opens up a world of interpretive territory heretofore seldom explored.

The Reception of Du Fu (712-770) and His Poetry in Imperial China Ji Hao, 2017-05-08 For centuries Chinese critics have acclaimed Du Fu 712-770 as China's greatest poet. He has exerted tremendous influence both as a model poet and as a cultural icon. In The Reception of Du Fu 712-770 and His Poetry in Imperial China, Ji Hao provides modern readers with a general picture of the reception of Du Fu and his work from the Song to the Qing. He also explores major shifts in interpretive approaches to Du Fu's poetry and their poetic and cultural implications. Through the case of reading Du Fu, the book also offers an in-depth examination of subtleties of the mode of life reading and the concept of transparency. This exploration seeks to provide a new orientation to the significance of the overarching principles of reading poetry in traditional China.

Bodies on the Line

Raphael Allison, 2014-12-01 Bodies on the Line offers the first sustained study of the poetry reading in its most formative period, the 1960s. Raphael Allison closely examines a vast archive of audio recordings of several key postwar American poets to explore the social and literary context of the sixties poetry reading, which is characterized by contrasting, differing styles of performance: the humanist style and the skeptical strain. The humanist style, made mainstream by the Beats and their imitators, is characterized by faith in the power of presence, emotional communion and affect. The skeptical strain emphasizes openness of interpretation and multivalent meaning, a lack of stability or consistency and ironic detachment. By comparing these two dominant styles of reading, Allison argues that attention to sixties poetry readings reveals poets struggling between the kind of immediacy and presence that readings suggested and a private retreat from such performance based publicity one centered on the text itself Recordings of Robert Frost Charles Olson Gwendolyn Brooks Larry Eigner and William Carlos Williams all of whom emphasized voice breath and spoken language and who were inveterate professional readers in the sixties expose this struggle in often surprising ways In deconstructing assertions about the role and importance of the poetry reading during this period Allison reveals just how dramatic political and contentious poetry readings could be By discussing how to hear as well as read poetry Bodies on the Line offers startling new vantage points from which to understand American poetry since the 1960s as both performance and text
