The American Rhetorical Construction of the Iranian Nuclear Threat Jason Jones, 2011-06-02 From 2002 to 2008 the Bush administration argued that Iran was developing nuclear weapons despite years of inconclusive International Atomic Energy Agency inspection reports In the absence of substantive evidence much of the debate was conducted via public forums with a heavy persuasive element to the discourse This book offers an in depth consideration of the rhetoric surrounding Iran s controversial nuclear programme It takes an interdisciplinary approach examining speeches interviews news reports online message boards and newspaper layouts during the Bush Presidency 2000 2008 Engaging with visual grammar and narrative the book looks at layouts from the Associated Press The New York Times and The Washington Post amongst others The book points out using rhetorical theory and discourse analysis the conditions that lent credibility to the Bush administration s position by examining the arguments Bush and his political surrogates put forward and the discourse strategies that influenced which ideas gained salience and which were downplayed Political communication and Foucault's theory of governmentality are brought in to articulate the implications regarding the influence importance and expansion of executive power Energy and Water Development Appropriations for 2007 United States.
