Types of Population Dynamics		Process	Impact
Exponential Growth		An organism is introduced into a homogeneous, unchanging environment
Logistic Growth	Phase 1	An organism is introduced into a homogeneous, unchanging environment
	Phase 2	Resource limited
	Phase 3	Self-regulating within the environment is reached

Lesson Summary

Describing Populations

Basic Statistics Basic statistics study population. Ecologists study population growth, geographic range, birth rate, sex, density, and distribution, and age structure.

Change after Change They give us a population size today, by geographic range, all population changes including immigration. For example, the population of humans is a single entity, a positive value, and grows. They can all be added. Meanwhile, a population of birds can be a mix of birds from the geographic range and those in other areas.

Growth Rate The number of organisms in a population change over time, in a given geographic area. Population numbers can grow rapidly when birth rates are high, death rates are low, and there are no barriers to growth.
