Food Webs and Niche Space Joel E. Cohen,David W. Stephens,2020-03-31 What is the minimum dimension of a niche space necessary to represent the overlaps among observed niches This book presents a new technique for obtaining a partial answer to this elementary question about niche space The author bases his technique on a relation between the combinatorial structure of food webs and the mathematical theory of interval graphs Professor Cohen collects more than thirty food webs from the ecological literature and analyzes their statistical and combinatorial properties in detail As a result he is able to generalize within habitats of a certain limited physical and temporal heterogeneity the overlaps among niches along their trophic feeding dimensions can be represented in a one dimensional niche space far more often than would be expected by chance alone and perhaps always This compatibility has not previously been noticed It indicates that real food webs fall in a small subset of the mathematically possible food webs Professor Cohen discusses other apparently new features of real food webs including the constant ratio of the number of kinds of prey to the number of kinds of predators in food webs that describe a community In conclusion he discusses possible extensions and limitations of his results and suggests directions for future research
