Policy, Roundtable on Translating Genomic-Based Research for Health, 2014-03-06 Many drug developers have examined new strategies for creating efficiencies in their development processes including the adoption of genomics based approaches Genomic data can identify new drug targets for both common and rare diseases can predict which patients are likely to respond to a specific treatment and has the potential to significantly reduce the cost of clinical trials by reducing the number of patients that must be enrolled in order to demonstrate safety and efficacy A key component of the approval of targeted therapeutics is the ability to identify the population of patients who will benefit from treatment and this has largely hinged on the co development and co submission to the FDA of a companion diagnostic test The co development process or the development of the test and drug for the simultaneous submission to FDA has led to a major alteration in the way that drugs are being developed with traditionally separate entities pharmaceutical and diagnostic companies now working in close collaboration Refining Processes for the Co Development of Genome Based Therapeutics and Companion Diagnostic Tests is the summary of a workshop held by the Roundtable on Translating Genomic Based Research for Health on February 27 2013 to examine and discuss challenges and potential solutions for the codevelopment of targeted therapeutics and companion molecular tests for the prediction of drug response Prior to the workshop key stakeholders including laboratory and medical professional societies were individually asked to provide possible solutions to resolve the concerns raised about co development of companion diagnostic tests and therapies Workshop speakers were charged with addressing these solutions in their presentations by providing insight on 1 whether the proposed solutions address the problems described 2 whether there are other solutions to propose and 3 what steps could be taken to effectively implement the proposed solutions

What Every Woman Should Know about Cervical Cancer Nenad Markovic, Olivera Markovic, 2016-12-19 This book an updated and extended edition is about mobilizing women and health care policy makers and providers to unite their efforts in a single strategy for fighting cervical cancer worldwide The objective of this strategy would be to reverse cervical cancer prevalence and mortality rates among all 2.4 billion women at risk and to achieve this goal within 10-15 years of implementation Cervical Cancer Screening Pap test VIA VILI or HPV failed to stop cervical cancer worldwide simply because many countries could not afford developing infrastructure necessary to carry on the global strategy and because the outreach could not accomplish the targeted 51% of the population at risk In 2015 there is still 600 000 women getting cervical cancer annually and 300 000 of them die Every minute one woman gets cervical cancer and every 2 minutes one woman dies from
