

- 6 The sister, Miss Watson, a terrible old maid, with goggles on, had just come to live with her, and took a set at me now with a spelling-book. She worked me spelling-book for about an hour, and then the widow made her case up. I couldn't stand it much longer. Then she at least it was dreadfully dull, and I was filthy. Miss Watson would say, "Don't put your feet up there, Thatchbery!" and "Don't scrounch up like that, Thatchbery—sit up straight!" and pretty soon she would say, "Don't gap and stretch like that, Thatchbery—why don't you try to talk?" Then she told me all about the best place, and I said I wished I was there. She got mad then, but I didn't even say harm. All I wanted was to go somewhere; all I wanted was a change, I wasn't particular. She said it was wicked to say what I said, and she wouldn't say it for the whole world; she was going to live so as to get to the good place. Well, I couldn't see no advantage in going where she was going, so I made up my mind I wouldn't try for it. But I never said so, because it would only make trouble, and wouldn't do no good.
- 7 Now she had got a start, and she went on and told me all about the good place. She said all a body would have to do there was to go around all day long with a harp and sing, forever and ever. So I didn't think much of it. But I never said so. I asked her if she reckoned Tom Sawyer would go there, and she said not by a considerable sight. I was glad about that, because I wanted him and me to live together.
