between the 88th and less successful divisions and discussions of the contemporary relevance of the 88th's experiences. The Drafter Division is especially rich in its sources. John Sloan Brown, with close ties to the division, has secured extensive and candid contributions from veterans. To these he has added a full array of archival and secondary sources. The result is a definitive study of African Americans creating a division out of raw draftees and leading them on to creditable victories. Its findings will be important for military and social historians and for students of defense policy.

African American War Heroes James B. Martin, 2014-05-12 Detailed profiles bring stories of African American heroism in the U.S. armed forces to life from the American Revolution through the conflict in Afghanistan. African American war heroes remain largely unsung; their courage and valor relegated to the less traveled corners of history. This work seeks out those heroes: soldiers, sailors, flyers, and marines who earned their nation's highest medals in defense of freedom and equality. Some of these men and women died on the battlefield. Others returned to civilian life in a segregated country. What they share across time and circumstance is devotion to duty and to the country they defended even in the face of personal and racial prejudice. Entries profile decorated African Americans from all of the U.S. conflicts since the Revolutionary War. In addition to providing basic biographical data, each profile offers a detailed account of the individual's heroic actions. The book also offers sidebars on events and topics relevant to African Americans in the U.S. armed forces, such as histories of the 54th Massachusetts and the Tuskegee Army.

The Long Walk Brian Castner, 2014-03-13 Brian Castner served three tours of duty in the Middle East, two of them as the commander of an Explosive Ordnance Disposal unit in Iraq. He and his team and his brothers and sisters disarmed bombs. Sometimes they used robots and remote controls. Sometimes they set off controlled explosions. Sometimes one of the team would have to put on the eighty-pound Kevlar suit, take the Long Walk, and disarm the device by hand. Often they were simply too late, arriving just in time to pick up the pieces. In a hailstorm of bullets, bomb fragments, body parts, and the endless wailing of innocent civilians, the days rolled into nights, yesterday turned into tomorrow, and today never even happened. But after the tour, the celebrations, and the long plane ride home, the real war was just beginning. The war against the fear, the confusion, the guilt, and the memory loss. The war against the Crazy. This exhilarating, heartbreaking, searingly honest memoir exposes two harrowing and simultaneous realities: the terror, excitement, and camaraderie of combat and the lonely battle against the enemy within.
