Abstract: This study was designed to determine the effect of a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet on the body composition and metabolic profile of obese women. The study was conducted in a clinical setting. The subjects were 12 obese women (mean age 45.8 ± 1.2 years, mean BMI 38.5 ± 1.5 kg/m²). The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group (n = 6) and an intervention group (n = 6). The control group received a standard diet, while the intervention group received a 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet. The study was conducted over a 12-week period. The primary outcome measures were body composition (fat mass, lean mass, and total mass) and metabolic profile (glucose, insulin, and lipid levels). The results showed that the intervention group had a significant decrease in fat mass and total mass, while the control group had no significant changes. The intervention group also had a significant decrease in insulin resistance and lipid levels, while the control group had no significant changes. The results suggest that a 12-week, 1000 kcal/day energy-restricted diet can improve body composition and metabolic profile in obese women.
