These operations are the basic techniques in the production of yarn and thread pre requisite to weaving and any study of Chinese textile technology must start with the raw material obtained from fibre plants such as hemp ramie jute cotton etc and silk reeled off from cocoons of the domestic silkworm The time span covered runs from the neolithic to the nineteenth century Archaeological and pictorial evidence the bulk of it hitherto unpublished in the West is brought together with Chinese textual sources which are extensively translated and interpreted to illustrate Chinese achievements in this field Professor Kuhn s study reveals the way in which Chinese textile technological inventiveness has influenced textile production in other regions of the world and in medieval Europe It explains how textile technology reached its high point between the tenth and thirteenth centuries and attempts to indicate the reasons for its subsequent relative decline The development of the textile industry in Europe was a key factor in the rise of capitalism In the case of China after Sung times textile technology and the organisation of textile labour may help indicate why such a development did not take place in China

A Short History of Economic Progress Y.S. Brennor,2014-06-17 Y S Brenner is an economist whose main concern is with development and this attitude is reflected in his approach to economic history He begins this seminal study in the era of the Reformation in Europe and bases it on the hypothesis that once started economic progress will spread over ever increasing parts of the earth wherever and whenever conditions become suitable From this point of view he examines the nature of the impediments which prevent the more rapid and general progress of mankind towards greater material affluence while at the same time considering the positive growth promoting factors in the various economies Thus he provides an analysis of economic progress in the developed countries showing which natural social political and cultural forces promoted such progress and which delayed or hindered it He attempts to explain why European nations took several decades to emulate the achievements of Britain and why nations in other parts of the world such as Japan and Russia were unable for a considerable time to match the advances made in parts of Western Europe and the United States Finally he attempts to explain why the developing countries are still finding it so difficult to catch up with the economic progress of the more advanced nations Y S Brenner was Head of the Department of Economics at Cape Coast University in Ghana The book arose from a series of lectures on economic development he delivered there during the years 1966 1967 This book was first published in 1969 Wind, Water, Work Adam Lucas, 2006 This book is the most comprehensive empirical study to date of the social and technical aspects of milling during the ancient and medieval periods Drawing on the latest archaeological evidence and historical studies the book examines the chronological development and technical details of handmills beast mills watermills and windmills from the first millennium BCE to c 1500 It discusses the many and varied uses to which mills were turned in the civilisations of Rome China Islam and Europe and the many types of mill that existed The book also includes comparative regional studies of the social and economic significance of milling and tackles several important historiographical issues such as whether technological stagnation was a characteristic of late Antiquity whether there was an industrial revolution in the European Middle Ages based on waterpower and how contemporary studies in the social shaping of technology can shed light on the study of pre modern technology Subject Catalog, 1982 Library of Congress, 1982
