and through the quicken trees she passed straight to Bethlehem to be the foster mother of Jesus Partly because of this tale and partly because of the poems of Fiona Macleod there seems a purer halo of simplicity about Saint Bridget than about any other saint She milked her kine in the fields and the stable in Palestine was just over on the other side of the hedge She still milks the white kine of heaven and her life is as lovely there as it was on earth Give up thy milk to her who calls Across the low green hills of Heaven The stream cool meads of Paradise Saint Bridget is not the only one who has crossed time and space and reached the Manger with the Holy Child Impossible to count those who have at least come as near to it as the shepherds abiding in the fields many have been able to approach the door and to feel the light fall through some there are who have gone inside All these would tell what they have seen but one lacks skill another has seen imperfectly and forgets another has not come near enough and invents and another again sits here to use Andrea del Sarto's tragic words Their works drop groundwards but themselves I know Reach many a time a heaven that's shut to me Enter and take their place there sure enough Though they come back and cannot tell the world My works are nearer heaven but I sit here Spiritual Substance James Taylor,1930 Spiritual Breath for the Soul Twinkle Scott,Dianne Hiatt,2014-04 book description coming soon Spiritual Lemonade Lucy Bear,2019-05-28 Spiritual Lemonade takes the reader on a journey through both the harshness and great beauty of life The power of her words brings forward a mixture of emotions and the positive messages that are imbued into every short story are like a healing balm that helps us to move forward and leave the past behind
