Extension Division, 1971 Appalachia on the Table Erica Abrams Locklear, 2023-04-15 When her mother passed along a cookbook made and assembled by her grandmother Erica Abrams Locklear thought she knew what to expect But rather than finding a homemade cookbook full of apple stack cake leather britches pickled watermelon or other traditional mountain recipes Locklear discovered recipes for devil s food cake with coconut icing grape catsup and fig pickles Some recipes even relied on food products like Bisquick Swans Down flour and Calumet baking powder Where Locklear wondered did her Appalachian food script come from And what implicit judgments had she made about her grandmother based on the foods she imagined she would have been interested in cooking Appalachia on the Table argues in part that since the conception of Appalachia as a distinctly different region from the rest of the South and the United States the foods associated with the region and its people have often been used to socially categorize and stigmatize mountain people Rather than investigate the actual foods consumed in Appalachia Locklear instead focuses on the representations of foods consumed implied moral judgments about those foods and how those judgments shape reader perceptions of those depicted The question at the core of Locklear s analysis asks How did the dominant culinary narrative of the region come into existence and what consequences has that narrative had for people in the mountains Taste and Odour in Source and Drinking Water

Virginia Tech's Shayne Graham trots onto the field at West Virginia on November 6 1999 with two thoughts in his mind One is a missed field goal that would have beaten Miami a year earlier The other is the 44 yard field goal he is about to try against the Mountaineers a kick he must make if the Hokies are to stay unbeaten and on track for a national championship Head down he focuses on his mark as the ball is snapped He steps forward the dream of an entire team resting with his leg Now hear Graham's memory of that kick in his own words for the first time

Contemporary Public Memorials Erika Lee Doss, 2008 In The Emotional Life of Contemporary Public Memorials Towards a Theory of Temporary Memorials Erika Doss examines this contemporary phenomenon of public commemoration in terms of changed cultural and social practices regarding mourning memory and public feeling. The Emotional Life of Contemporary Public Memorials Erika Doss, 2025-10-01 From the commemoration of September 11 to the Holocaust memorial in Berlin recent decades have witnessed a substantial increase in the number of new public memorials built in both Europe and the United States. This volume considers the contemporary explosion of public commemoration in terms of changed cultural and social practices of mourning memory and public feeling. Positioning memorials as the physical and visual embodiment of our affective responses to loss, Erika Doss focuses especially on the memorial ephemera of flowers, candles, balloons, and cards placed at sites of tragic death in order to better comprehend how grief is mediated in contemporary commemorative cultures.

Reflections of My Imperfections Henry Rumper, 2022-03-29 What dreams are lost to lonely nights when stars are suicidal. Upon the moonlit shore I walk where broken hearts lie idle. Countless echoes of empty shells beat hard against the shore and I would give the moon to them if I could love once more. It is a rare treat when an author not only shares his writing but his photograph and illustrations as well. Henry's poetry is a reflection of his perspective on life and reflects a wide genre of subjects from family to love and a multitude of sins in between. Like his pictures, his poetry ranges from lighthearted to passionate and his words are thought provoking. Loving Mountains, Loving Men Jeff Mann, 2023-08-22 A gay man chronicles his relationship to his native Appalachian culture and society. Appalachians are known for their love of place yet many LGBTQ people from the mountains flee to urban areas in search of community and broader acceptance. Jeff Mann tells his story as one who left and then returned who insists on claiming and celebrating both regional and sexual identities. In memoir and poetry Mann describes his life as an openly gay man who has remained true to his mountain roots. Mann recounts his upbringing in Hinton, a small town in southern West Virginia, as well as his realization of his homosexuality, his early encounters with homophobia, his coterie of supportive lesbian friends, and his initial attempts to escape his native region in hopes of finding a freer life in urban gay communities. Mann depicts his difficult search for a romantic relationship, the family members who have given him the strength to defy convention, his anger against religious intolerance and the violence of homophobia, and his love for the rich folk culture of the Highland South. His character and values shaped by the mountains, Mann has reconciled his sexuality with both traditional definitions of Appalachian manhood and his own attachment to home and kin. Loving Mountains, Loving Men is a compelling universal story of making peace with oneself and the wider world.
