A History Of Environmentalism Local Struggles Global Histories:

A History of Environmentalism Marco Armiero, Lise Sedrez, 2014 This book brings together a collection of highly respected contributors to provide a global history of environmentalism It makes the basic assumption that we can better understand the relationship that exists between man and nature through the close observation of conflicts that have taken place between the two Using a range of case studies A History of Environmentalism Local Struggles Global Histories weaves together an intricate fabric of environmental struggles throughout history that tells us much about transformations of cultural perceptions and ways of production and consuming as well as ecological and social changes Although the narratives included in the book are strongly rooted in specific places including Brazil Italy the USA and Australia they suggest and reveal things about environmental issues in history on a world scale This book will enable students to understand the history of environmentalism from a global and local perspective simultaneously

A History of Environmentalism Marco Armiero, Lise Sedrez, 2014-07-31 Think globally act locally has become a call to environmentalist mobilization proposing a closer connection between global concerns local issues and individual responsibility A History of Environmentalism explores this dialectic relationship with ten contributors from a range of disciplines providing a history of environmentalism which frames global themes and narrates local stories Each of the chapters in this volume addresses specific struggles in the history of environmental movements for example over national parks species protection forests waste contamination nuclear energy and expropriation A diverse range of environments and environmental actors are covered including the communities in the Amazonian Forest the antelope in Tibet atomic power plants in Europe and oil and politics in the Niger Delta The chapters demonstrate how these conflicts make visible the intricate connections between local and global the body and the environment and power and nature A History of Environmentalism tells us much about transformations of cultural perceptions and ways of production and consuming as well as ecological and social changes More than offering an exhaustive picture of the entire environmentalist movement A History of Environmentalism highlights the importance of the experience of environmentalism within local communities It offers a worldwide and polyphonic perspective making it key reading for students and scholars of global and environmental history and political ecology

Disturbed Ecologies Darcy White, Julia Peck, Chris Goldie, 2023-03-03 The imaginaries of northern landscape have not remained static in the era of ecological crisis but play a pivotal function within the geopolitics of visual representation Such imaginaries can sanction those dominant discourses that frame environmental catastrophe as the consequence of undifferentiated human activity but it is argued they also have the capacity to represent a complexity and heterogeneity frequently absent from this broad discursive field The contributors to this volume engage with the practice curation and utilization of photography and other lens based media to examine the critical role of visual culture in shaping and interrogating conceptions of environmental catastrophe

Methodological Challenges in Nature-Culture and Environmental History Research Jocelyn Thorpe, Stephanie

Rutherford, L. Anders Sandberg, 2016-11-10 This book examines the challenges and possibilities of conducting cultural environmental history research today. Disciplinary commitments certainly influence the questions scholars ask and the ways they seek out answers but some methodological challenges go beyond the boundaries of any one discipline. The book examines how to account for the fact that humans are not the only actors in history yet dominate archival records; how to attend to the non visual senses when traditional sources offer only a two dimensional non sensory version of the past; how to decolonize research in and beyond the archives and how effectively to use sources and means of communication made available in the digital age. This book will be a valuable resource for those interested in environmental history and politics, sustainable development and historical geography.

Edward Thomas's Prose Ralph Pite, 2025-10-02 Edward Thomas 1878-1917 is a renowned poet. Until recently his prose writing has by comparison been neglected and very often dismissed by critics. Thanks not least to the multi volume new edition being published by OUP gen eds Guy Cuthbertson and Lucy Newlyn this body of work is being re evaluated. This new study by Ralph Pite forms part of that undertaking; it is the first to consider Thomas's prose on its own terms independently of the poetry that it preceded. By considering all of Thomas's prose work in its wide variety of genres: nature writing, literary criticism, fiction, autobiography and by drawing for the first time on the whole range of his reviewing this study transforms understanding of his development. The continuity of his critical perspective emerges; his Celtic loyalties, their nature and their depth are revealed; both the complexity and the conviction of his politics are brought to light alongside his receptive alertness to innovative writing and his own originality and daring as a writer. The view of his achievement generated by his interwar reception itself, the outcome of societal mourning and griefwork is challenged so is the critical consensus regarding the quality of his prose and the reasons behind its changing styles across Thomas's career. From all of this it becomes clear, moreover, how powerfully Thomas's work speaks in the contemporary moment of environmental and climate breakdown. Thomas's prose seeks constantly to articulate a relationship of absolute interdependence between human beings and the natural world. His writing is so exploratory and original because Thomas seeks to address the problematic reality that interdependence: this truth of humanity's place in natural world is perceptible to Western eyes only as mystery.

A Liberation for the Earth A.M. Ranawana, 2022-11-30 In the encyclical Laodato Si Pope Francis describes the earth as the new poor, opening it up as a place in need of liberation. The fate of the poor, the marginalised and those on the wrong side of the western colonial project is inextricably tied up with the fate of the planet. In A Liberation for the Earth Anupama Ranawana explores the nexus between climate, race and the liberative potential of the cross. Reflecting on the entanglement between colonialization and the destruction of the planet she considers how this entanglement is played out and resisted within faith based and secular ecological justice movements in Canada, Sri Lanka and the United Kingdom.

Environmental History of Modern Migrations Marco Armiero, Richard Tucker, 2017-05-12 In the age of climate change the possibility that dramatic environmental transformations might cause the dislocation of millions of people has become not only a matter for scientific speculation or science fiction narratives but the object of strategic planning and military analysis. Environmental History of Modern Migrations offers a worldwide perspective on the history of migrations throughout the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and provides an opportunity to reflect on the global ecological transformations and developments which have occurred throughout the last few centuries. With a primary focus on the environment migration nexus, this book advocates that global environmental changes are not distinct from global social transformations. Instead, it offers a progressive method of combining environmental and social history which manages to both encompass and transcend current approaches to environmental justice issues. This edited collection will be of great interest to students and practitioners of environmental history and migration studies as well as those with an interest in history and sociology.

Ruling Nature, Controlling People Luregn Lenggenhager, 2018. Recent nature conservation initiatives in Southern Africa such as communal conservancies and peace parks are often embedded in narratives of economic development and ecological research. They are also increasingly marked by militarisation and violence. In Ruling Nature Controlling People, Luregn Lenggenhager shows that these features were also characteristic of South African rule over the Caprivi Strip region in North Eastern Namibia, especially in the fields of forestry, fisheries and ultimately wildlife conservation. In the process, the increasingly internationalised war in the region from the late 1960s until Namibia's independence in 1990 became intricately interlinked with contemporary nature conservation, ecology and economic development projects. By retracing such interdependencies, Lenggenhager provides a novel perspective from which to examine the history of a region which has until now barely entered the focus of historical research. He thereby highlights the enduring relevance of the supposedly peripheral Caprivi and its military, scientific and environmental histories for efforts to develop a deeper understanding of the ways in which apartheid South Africa exerted state power.

Ecology and Power in the Age of Empire Corey Ross, 2017. Ecology and Power in the Age of Empire provides the first wide-ranging environmental history of the heyday of European imperialism from the late nineteenth century to the end of the colonial era. It focuses on the ecological dimensions of the explosive growth of tropical commodity production, global trade and modern resource management strategies that still visibly shape our world today and how they were related to broader social, cultural and political developments in Europe's colonies. Covering the overseas empires of all the major European powers, Corey Ross argues that tropical environments were not merely a stage on which conquest and subjugation took place but were an essential part of the colonial project, profoundly shaping the imperial enterprise even as they were shaped by it. The story he tells is not only about the complexities of human experience but also about people's relationship with the ecosystems in which they were themselves embedded: the soil, water, plants and animals that were likewise a part of Europe's empire. Although it shows that imperial conquest rarely represented the signal ecological trauma that some accounts suggest, it nonetheless demonstrates that modern imperialism marked a decisive and largely negative milestone for the natural environment. By relating the expansion of modern empire global trade and mass consumption to the momentous ecological shifts that they entailed this book provides a historical perspective on the vital nexus of social political and environmental issues that we face in the twenty first century world The Power of the Periphery Peder Anker,2020-05-28 Examines how Norway has positioned itself as an alternative environmentally sound nation in a world filled with tension and instability Oral History and the Environment Stephen M. Sloan,Mark Cave,2022 As uncontrolled development forces crises in the natural world deeply ingrained human connections with the earth are changing Oral history's proven ability to explore issues of race ethnicity class gender and sexuality make it a uniquely effective methodology for bringing in new perspectives to our understanding of environments This book brings together interviews with a global range of activists farmers water system managers victims of catastrophe tribal trustees wilderness rangers reindeer herders and foresters among others whose life experience gives them special insights into human environmental interaction and adaption Commentary by oral historians examines how these stories can be used to better understand our relationship with the natural world Oral History and the Environment takes what could seem broad and impersonal forces such as climate change and environmentalism and crystalizes their meaning through personal stories It overturns narrow historical frameworks bounded artificially by national borders and instead portrays the issues facing our common ecosystems Toxitaly Paolo Chirumbolo,2025-04-30 The rise of Italian ecodocumentaries represents a significant cultural response to urgent environmental issues reflecting a growing ecological awareness in contemporary Italian society Toxitaly presents comprehensive scholarly analysis of these films exploring their portrayal of key regional and national environmental events and concerns Paolo Chirumbolo discusses the impact of these documentaries on Italian culture highlighting how they depict industrial landscapes and articulate the emerging ecological consciousness The analysis is structured around four main narratives Petronarratives Steel Narratives Chemical Narratives and Waste Narratives Each ecodocumentary is examined thematically and formally with Chirumbolo employing Bill Nichols's theories on the various modes of representation in documentary film to define the relationships between subject matter filmmaker and viewer In a time of increasing public interest in environmental issues and the growth of grassroots movements Toxitaly illuminates how ecodocumentaries can shape public discourse and inspire ecological awareness both in Italy and beyond Reading Contemporary Environmental Justice R.
