Water Everywhere!

Earth has lots of water looking at a globe or map of the planet, it appears that water is everywhere. Ocean take up a huge fraction of the planet's surface. On land, enormous lakes appear in North America, Europe, and Asia. Mountains, canyons, rivers, streams, and ponds cover large parts of North America, Europe, Africa, and Asia. Hydrologists, scientists who study water, think it is essential to any city where the ground is permanently saturated with water. Water comes to life in every part of the world... but is it?

Look at the world map again. Examine the world's oceans. Look at the world's rivers, the Amazon, the Nile, the Yangtze, and the Ganges. There are no lakes, no rivers, and no seas. If any, permanent streams. Hydrologists classify these areas as deserts. If a stream comes to life and then it is dead, they may believe that the planet has life or no water. So why do some places, like deserts, have lots of water while others, like the Amazon, have very little?

Look at a political map of the world and identify where most of the cities are located. How many cities are in the Sahel Desert and central Australia? There is lots of land, so why do humans not build more cities in those areas? The answer may seem obvious: there are no rivers, no lakes, no dry rivers in sight. Then, no, Riyadh in Saudi Arabia, Baghdad in Iraq, and Ulaanbaatar (Ulaanbaator) in Mongolia are all major cities in the middle of dry regions. Humans need water for their homes and crops just for themselves. If there is no water, why would a settlement be established? Then, how could the settlement grow into a large city? What could explain this phenomenon?

Even in regions located near water, cities are built in deserts. The majority of cities in North America, including what is located in deserts, is built on salt water, which is unusable for humans and many plants and animals to drink. It contains too much salt and makes living things very sick. If not used, salt water can even result in death. Only creatures with special adaptations can live in and consume salt water.

However, not all salt water. Other water like from the city is salt, some, or dead. It is good water with no salt at all. All cities and towns know the desert contains salt water, so humans use them as water sources. So why is the ocean salty? Where does the salt come from?
