Vocabulary

- Amplitude – the maximum distance a point is moved from its rest position when a wave passes through.
 - For a transverse wave, the amplitude is the distance a point is moved up or down when a wave passes through.
 - For a longitudinal wave, the amplitude is the distance a point is moved left or right as the wave passes through.
- Compression – a part of a longitudinal wave where the particles in the medium are pushed together.

- Crest – the highest part of a wave.
- Frequency – the number of times something occurs in a given period of time.
 - The frequency of a wave is equal to the number of waves that pass a point each second.
 - The unit of frequency is the hertz (Hz). One hertz is one event per second.
 - If the speed is held constant, shorter wavelengths will correspond to higher frequencies, and longer wavelengths will correspond to lower frequencies.
- Linear mass density – the amount of mass per unit of length.
 - Linear mass density is measured in kilograms per meter.
 - For example, a 10-meter rope with a mass of 13 kilograms has a linear mass density of 1.3 kg/m.
- Longitudinal wave – a wave in which the motion of the medium is in the same direction as the wave.
- Medium – a substance through which waves can travel.
- Period – the time required for a single event to occur.
 - The period of a wave is the time required for one full wave to pass a location.
