

A Rubric for Literacy Narrative

The literacy narrative you are writing must fulfill by the following requirements:

The workable rough draft must have at least 3 pages.

The final draft must have at least 4 pages.

An interesting beginning is required.

Mention when you started learning to read/write/compose

Describe time, place and situation that featured the beginning of your literacy

Highlight your struggles in the initial period of learning.

Slightly overstate your disappointment and frustration that accompanied your battle for literacy

Clearly mention who came to assist you, guide you, inspire you to uplift you from the frustration you were troubled with.

With a special highlight, dramatize your joy and excitement upon overcoming the hurdles such as frustration and inability to proceed confidently in your pursuit for literacy.

Narrate how you continued to hone your talent for literacy even after coping with the frustration.

Recount how you continued to raise the level of your literacy to the sophisticated level.

Link your story to your present life on the Campus

Tell clearly why your readers should read your story and specify how your story of literacy can be purposeful and meaningful for them

At last, write a concluding paragraph, making a few generalizing statements about human pursuit for literacy.

Use commonplace transition markers to make your story connected.

Use compelling metaphors, styles and terms of expression to make your story attractive
