Diversity, Equity, and Inclusive Education: A Voice from the Margins C.P. Gause, 2011-07-23 The United States is more ideologically philosophically culturally linguistically racially and ethnically diverse than she has been in any given point in her history however many of her citizens are currently living in a state of fear What stands out the most is how we allow this fear to take over our lives in multiple ways We fear our neighbors therefore we do not engage them We fear young people and the way they look therefore we do not have conversations with them We fear the possibility of terrorists attacks therefore we utilize eavesdropping and surveillance devices on our citizens There are some of us who fear the lost of gun rights therefore we stockpile weapons We fear anything that is different from who we are and what we believe This nation has at many points within our history become more united because of our fear however as our borders physical and virtual become less protective and the opportunities to connect more via the digital world expand we must educate our citizenry to not live in fear but in hope To teach learn and lead democratically requires the individual to engage in problem posing and in critiquing taken for granted narratives of power and privilege Critical change occurs with significant self sacrifice potential alienation rejection and costly consequences Educators must do justice to the larger social public and institutional responsibility of our positions and we must exercise courage in creating opportunities for change

Diversity Equity and Inclusive Education A Voice from the Margins provides the space and opportunity to move beyond a state of fear into a state of organic transformation a place where fear creates the energy to speak those things that are not as though they were scholarship including this volume of essays should be the same that we use to critique and transform the larger society in which we live and work
